It is our great honour to host you here in this unique environment which Ston can offer, this Medieval little town with whose history reaches back as far as the 14th century. It is a small town with the longest stone wall in Europe(5,5km), with narrow quiet streets,noble ancient houses and with traces of ancient cultures. Its former value as a "salt city" gets confirmed even today in the plants of the oldest active salt-works in the world. These saltworks have remained faithful to the tradition and to the natural way of salt production which has not changed since remote ages.

The gulf of Mali Ston with places Mali Ston, Hodilje, Luka, Duba has a clean and natural environment. It has been well-known for its mussel and oysters-growing farm since Roman times, and the oysters from Ston (ostrea edulis), as an acknowledged natural aphrodisiac has made this region world-famous.

Not far from Ston is the beautiful bay Prapatno with its centuries old olives trees, Mediterrean macchia thickets and clean sandy beaches and the site of one of the lovelist camps in this region. The Pelješac peninsula has,since ancient times,been adorned with grape vine plantations, and wine production has a long tradition and is one of the most important commercial activities.
