The beauty of the Croatian coast attracts many visitors and the best way to explore it is by sea. Sailing enables you to experience treasures hidden throughout the fascinating string of islands, bays and towns and, given the diversity of their offer, you can adapt your voyage to your lifestyle. Apart from the highly indented coastline with over a thousand islands and islets, the Croatian Adriatic boasts an incredible number of natural phenomena, pristine waters, enological and culinary delights and historic heritage dating back thousands of years. The various cultures who have lived in this area gave it a special charm and temperament, and they contributed to the development of many distinctive features for such a small area. The beautiful natural sites, such as the five national parks situated on the Croatian coast and the islands, turn your journey across the Croatian sea and its coastline turns into a unique experience. Fun, just as much as it is interesting. Few can say they know the Croatian coast inside and out, but a lot of visitors return each year and enjoy exploring the authentic beauty which graces this part of the sea located in the heart of Europe. Thanks to the archipelagos stretching across the entire coast, Croatian sea is well-protected and you can find a safe harbour virtually anywhere. It is much harder to decide which harbour to sail to, since most islands are packed with lovely coastal towns, rich in history and preserving a lifestyle that becomes especially colourful during the summer months. It is impossible to choose the most beautiful bay on the Croatian Adriatic since there are simply too many to choose from, so it is up to every seafarer to find the one fairest to his eyes – and to his heart.

CHARTER IN CROATIA

Many people sail across the Adriatic in their own boats, but an even greater number of them rents them. Boats available for rent in Croatia, the most popular charter destination in the world for many years in this segment, are mostly sailboats, catamarans and bareboat motor yachts. Luxury boats with crews, including large yachts, may not be as common, but they are still well represented in Croatia, and a prime choice for clients seeking high quality service on the Croatian sea. Traditionally built wooden sailboats and their modern steel counterparts are also characteristic for Croatia. Many guests who spend their holidays ashore opt for renting speedboats in order to explore the beautiful Croatian waters during the day. If you prefer sailboats and sea kayaks, they are also available for rent for daily outings in Croatia.

NAUTICAL INFRASTRUCTURE

Croatia is well-known for its excellent nautical infrastructure. There are nearly seventy marinas on the coast, some of which are among the best in the Mediterranean. Marinas on distant islands are especially charming and they are open only for a limited period of time during the year. No matter where you end up, you will always find safe mooring in one of the Croatian marinas, along with full service for your boat. Small coastal towns with their traditional stone seafronts also offer mooring services. Although the level of service varies from place to place, it also forms a significant and authentic part of the nautical offer. Nowadays, numerous bays are equipped with mooring buoys where you can berth for a price and enjoy the natural surroundings and a good night's rest. Last, but not least, there is the option of mooring in one of countless uninhabited bays, which requires certain nautical skill and expertise, but offers a direct contact with nature and the opportunity to enjoy your stay at sea, away from civilisation.

Istria is a Croatian region known for its many attractions, including authentic Istrian delicacies drawing both sailors and tourists visiting from the mainland. Out of all Croatian regions, Istria is the best when it comes to enjoying life on the sea and on the mainland at the same time, which makes it interesting to sailors. Moreover, the proximity of the European continent and excellent transport connectivity make Istria ideal for year-round mooring of yachts, which is why the marinas in Istria are full of privately-owned vessels, dreaming peacefully. Istria often serves as the home base for summer cruises to the southern coastline of Croatia, but its own shores also offer plenty opportunities for beautiful sailing experiences. The magical picturesque coastal towns are reflected in the interior as well, where tourists can enjoy numerous wine trails and exquisite gastronomy, since these are not exclusive only to the very coast. Sailors who love good food often indulge in Istrian truffles, fish and crustaceans, Istrian cattle, as well as excellent olive oil and wine, which are inextricably linked to the Istrian peninsula. The western coast of Istria, from Kanegra in the north to cape Kamenjak in the south, is dotted with centuries-old towns and very vibrant, while the eastern coast, especially the area from the Tunarica bay to the cliffs of Brseč, is untouched, mystical and sparsely inhabited, thus hiding many secret romantic nooks and crannies. It would be difficult to single out the most beautiful charming town on the Istrian coast, but Rovinj stands out with its state-of-the-art nautical infrastructure (the new ACI marina) and the preserved architecture of this picturesque town. Only 12 nautical miles from Rovinj and just off the coast of Pula lies the Brijuni National Park, whose 14 islands spread over 736 hectares and whose pristine nature, rich archaeological history and unique flora and fauna make it one of the most beautiful Mediterranean archipelagos. The magnificent Pula amphitheatre, surrounded by as many as three marinas for a good reason, is located just a stone's throw away.

POPULAR ROUTES

One of the three marinas in Pula has the largest number of moorings in Istria, while the towns on the western coast of Istria hold their own with a total of nine modern marinas, which speaks volumes about the popularity of the area. It would be difficult to choose the most beautiful town, so we will mention the one with the most modern nautical infrastructure: Rovinj, whose 22 islets form one of the most beautiful summer island oases in the northern Adriatic. The Brijuni archipelago and its eponymous national park are even more fascinating, and their beauty makes them a must-see attraction included in all nautical routes. The largest city on the Istrian peninsula, Pula, is located near Brijuni. The symbol of this city is its amphitheatre built in the 1st century, sixth largest in the world and known locally as the Arena, which is still used for various events. If you are sailing westward, make sure to visit one of the most beautiful natural attractions in Istria – the nearby Lim bay, with its magical landscape, steep green cliffs and exquisite shellfish. Individual sailing through the bay is not allowed, but you can see it from one of the excursion boats that often visit this natural wonder. Feeling happy that you have contributed to the preservation of natural harmony, set your course towards one of the elite Adriatic marinas and the town of Novigrad. Colourful stone houses, the atmosphere of a small fishing village and Novigrad's rich history are a tale in itself, and in case of bad weather, this ancient town can be a perfect starting point for exploring Istria's inland gems. You can also opt to visit Poreč and Umag in the far west of the peninsula.

HIDDEN ROUTES

Sailors who want to visit less popular destinations should most definitely sail towards the eastern coast of Istria. After leaving behind the imposing Porer lighthouse, the southernmost point of the peninsula, and the famous cape Kamenjak (and its lighthouse), sail towards the Raša bay. It lies outside of the usual sailing routes, so a visit to any of the coves within this indented bay offers the experience of enjoying natural wonders with no crowds, something that is becoming more and more difficult in the Adriatic and across the Mediterranean. Sail along the snakelike bay with its steep cliffs and sporadic dense forests, then moor in the small village of Trget, where you can find what might just be the best tavern in this part of Istria. Another nearby part of the Raša bay is the Blaz cove, which used to be an important port on the nautical route which connected Pula and Trsat in Roman times. Five mills were in operation here, in the close proximity to the sea, which is extremely rare, and their remains are still visible. The route continues towards Rabac and Mošćenička Draga, which separates the regions of Istria and Kvarner. If you are returning by boat to Pula, spend the last moments of your blue Istrian symphony in one of the coves beneath the cape Kamenjak, which hides two large underwater caverns, another attraction of the Istrian archipelago. The entire peninsula is called Premantura, and due to its natural beauty and biodiversity it was declared a nature park, which guarantees an uninterrupted experience of stunning pristine surroundings.

The area of Kvarner is often said to possess two faces, i.e. two different landscapes intertwined and overlapping on a small area, one dominated by the land, and the other by the sea, separated from the coastline by the islands. However, it is impossible to generalise the beautiful attractions offered by this maritime area stretching from Opatija in the north to Karlobag in the south. Virtually all micro-locations have their own special features and a specific beauty, and their diversity is mostly due to the mountains in the hinterland of Rijeka, which extend towards the highest peak in Croatia, Velebit, rising near Senj as if from the sea. Its effects on the weather conditions create unique areas you won't be able to find anywhere else in the Croatian Adriatic. Pebbled beaches in coves resembling the surface of the Moon, with no vegetation, plenty of steep cliffs plummeting into the sea, mildly indented coast and protected areas with numerous inlets perfect for mooring and offering a lake-like environment – all of this awaits you in Kvarner, depending only on where you set your course. Just like Istria, this area is also very well connected to central Europe, so it offers many marinas that can be used as a home base for privately owned ships. As of recent, this also includes the "capital" of Kvarner, Rijeka, thus promoting it from a transportation hub to a nautical hub as well. The Kvarner shrimps and lamb from Cres may be the best-known Kvarner delicacies, and sailing this area you are sure to find tasty local gastronomic offer. Birdwatching in Cres, local customs on the isle of Susak, tranquillity of the western coast of the island of Pag, crystal clear sea surrounding the island of Rab, luxurious amenities available in Mali Lošinj, or picturesque towns like Vrbnik on Krk and Lubenice on Cres are additional reasons for sailing through Kvarner, discovering the magical world offered by diverse landscapes characteristic for the region.

POPULAR ROUTES

The most popular route lasts for 7 days and covers the islands of Unije, Cres, Krk, Rab, Lošinj, Ilovik and Susak. If you can spare some extra time, make sure to explore Cres. This pearl of Kvarner will provide you with genuine tranquillity, never-ending sage fields, beautiful olive groves, pastures full of free-roaming sheep throughout the year, and steep cliffs which are home to griffon vultures. Sailors can also enjoy magical coves perfect for daily excursions, and the nearby Blue Cave, while the ACI marina in Cres is one of the most beautiful and pleasant in the Adriatic. Practically abandoned, the old fortified stone town of Lubenice on Cres is located almost 400 metres above sea level, overlooking the open sea and a beautiful must-see beach. Mali Lošinj is another excellent port, and it is drawing in ever more sailors. In its vicinity, there are numerous gorgeous coves where you can swim, and it has recently added luxurious hotel amenities to its offer, available to sailors as well, thanks to the natural cove. The artificial passage between Cres and Lošinj is home to Osor, a town with a rich history, since it used to be the starting point for sailing towards the Dalmatian islands. Nowadays, the entire town of Osor is a museum, boasting historical artefacts dating back to the 9th century B.C. Rab is a must-see destination when sailing around the Kvarner islands. The mediaeval town on the eponymous island captivates with its magical walls, long promenade, and numerous beautiful pristine sand beaches nearby.

HIDDEN ROUTES

Sailors interested in natural attractions will enjoy swimming in the sea surrounding the Unije and Srakane islands (when the weather allows it), while the isle of Susak is indeed special in every sense. It is the only completely sandy island in the Adriatic, and it has maintained the spirit and charm of the olden days, thanks to its relatively isolated position. The unique dialect spoken on the island and the fantastic, vibrant folk costume form part of the Susak tradition, which makes it famous far and wide. You can moor your boat in a small port, and then walk all over the island, visiting the old lighthouse and the village, where you simply must taste local wines – the trojšćina and the pleskunac. During your stay in Kvarner, you should spend at least one night in the pristine nature, listening to its undisturbed sounds. The perfect spot for this may be one of the uninhabited coves of Punta Križa on Cres, a dreamy destination where you can still encounter deer in their early morning search for water. If you are looking for something really special, you should visit two islands that used to serve as prisons: Grgur and Goli otok. Grgur is located between Rab, Krk, Prvić and Goli otok, and it can be accessed by sailing along the southwestern coast of Krk, and then docking into the Sveti Grgur cove on the north-western side of the island. The island is lush with greenery, gorgeous coves and beaches, with alternating areas of rocky landscapes and forests. This used to be the site of a women's prison, whose remains can still be seen today. The infamous Goli otok is located a few hours of sailing away from Grgur, and it houses the remains of what was once the most famous prison in Europe. Nowadays, the island is not permanently inhabited, but during the summer months you can moor in the Vela Draga cove and start exploring the island.

The city of Zadar and its surrounding areas boast a very well-developed nautical infrastructure. They are located in the heart of the Croatian Adriatic, and the marinas in Zadar and its surroundings allow you to sail to all four corners of the world. If you head west, you will discover a bunch of little islands with tiny villages which still preserve the spirit of old times with their untouched natural coves. The best part: Silba, Olib, Premuda, Ist and Molat aren't included in the most popular sailing routes so you will be able to enjoy some tranquillity and privacy, which is so rare at the height of the tourist season. The situation is similar if you head south, where you will find the magnificent Dugi Otok and lots of lovely little isles such as Veli and Mali Iž or Rave, with their lake-like appearance thanks to long sea canals characteristic for sailing in the sea around Zadar. Heading east, the most obvious choices are the Kornati National Park and Telašćica nature park, with their unparalleled beauty and distinctive landscapes, which make them particularly popular in the summer season. If you decide to head north, you will sail into the Novigrad waters, Velebit channel, and even the river Zrmanja: a journey only a few will opt for, but it will reward you with unique landscapes that you won't be able to find in any other part of the Adriatic. This entire area is a true challenge for sailors who want to explore and discover new nooks and crannies, all the while sailing in well-sheltered seas. Its centre is the city of Zadar, with its rich historical heritage, vibrant urban atmosphere and many modern attractions such as the Sea Organ and the most beautiful sunset on the Adriatic.

POPULAR ROUTES

The most popular mooring point in the Zadar archipelago is a bay that forms its western border: the Pantera bay on Dugi Otok, the largest mooring point in the Adriatic. The 800-metre-long beautiful Sakarun beach is located on the southern side of Dugi Otok, and it has been named one of the 20 most beautiful beaches in the world. If you decide to spend some time in the four-mile-deep Telašćica bay, you will be able to enjoy a lake-like tranquillity, as well as an actual lake located between the cliffs on its south-eastern parts. Your sailing journey through the Zadar archipelago continues in the gorgeous north of Dugi Otok, visiting islands such as Rava, Iž, Zverinac and Sestrunj. The western part of the Zadar archipelago is located further in the high seas and comprises islands Olib, Silba, Premuda, Škarda, Ist and Molat. Its dazzling sandy beaches make Olib one of the most beautiful islands in this area of the Adriatic. Premuda is another location popular among sailors, thanks to its pleasant mooring area on the southern side of the island. The isle of Molat is a little closer to the mainland, and it would be a shame not to visit Silba, boasting good mooring possibilities, gorgeous nature and excellent local food. The almost connected islands of Ugljan and Pašman (they are divided by a narrow passage called Ždrilac) are located south of Zadar. The city of Zadar is a must on any sailor's route, and it boasts the largest marina in the Adriatic, located in the nearby Sukošan, which is one of the most frequently used nautical points in the Adriatic, together with Biograd.

HIDDEN ROUTES

The isle of Mežanj is located on the southern side of Dugi Otok, and it hides the beautiful pebbled beach of Veli Žal, while the Golubinka cave is also located nearby (next to the Bribinjšica cove). Impressive cliffs mark the southern sides of this island, rising over a hundred metres tall and dropping steeply into the sea, adding a mystical touch to your sailing experience. If you are sailing in a smaller vessel, you will find an excellent port on the island of Vrgada. This small island, completely car-free, is the first stop on your route out of Biograd. It offers a peaceful and welcoming atmosphere, but sailors rarely stop to spend the night there. The more adventurous sailor might enjoy sailing through the Velebit channel, the narrow passage between the island of Vir and the mainland, as well as under the Pag bridge (if you the height of your mast allows it). Sandy beaches, complete isolation, and the possibility of sailing into the Zrmanja river canyon are a unique experience, only attempted by the bravest of sailors. If you continue sailing towards the town of Pag, you will be able to enjoy the beautiful wilderness, the surreal rocky capes hiding lovely empty beaches and coves, overlooked by the 1700-metre-tall cliffs of Velebit. The island of Pag is nowadays a popular destination for electronic music fans where they can party in Zrće, a beach famous for the fact that you can enjoy never-ending parties there all summer long, hosted by world-famous musicians.

NATURE / HISTORY

It is believed that the Romans adopted their ship-building techniques and named their rowing galleys after them
- The church of St. Donatus, dating from the 9th century, is the symbol of Zadar and the most monumental Croatian building from the Early Middle Ages

HERITAGE / CUISINE

- Another gastronomical specialty of this area is the lamb, and visitors definitely must taste the Maraschino, a liqueur made from the famous maraschino cherries

ŠIMUNI

The Šibenik area of the Croatian Adriatic is a true sailor's paradise. This area is most densely packed with islands and islets, and it is located between two national parks, Kornati in the south and Krka in the north. This area would be an interesting sailing route even if it weren't for the national parks, thanks to the abundant coastal archipelago beginning with Murter and ending off the coast of Rogoznica. The vicinity of such a large number of islands makes the Šibenik area attractive for smaller boats. Another entry on the long list of reasons to visit the Šibenik area is the old city of Šibenik itself, whose Cathedral of St. James and newly renovated forts leave visitors from around the world breathless. However, this is just the beginning of the enchantment you will experience in the Šibenik area. From its exquisite gastronomy, traditional local wines, rich art history, to the archaeological sites from the Roman era located in the vicinity of the coast – there is something for everyone. This is why it is no surprise that the nautical infrastructure in this area is on the highest level. The numerous marinas in the Šibenik area offer top-quality services for sailors who visit them gladly.

POPULAR ROUTES

If we could choose only one sailing route, it would definitely be the one visiting the Kornati archipelago. These islands of unprecedented beauty are often chosen by visitors as the place to spend their entire holiday. The almost lake-like setting of the archipelago, completely sheltered by the island of Kornat on its north, will enable you to explore the innumerable protected coves and moorings while enjoying sailing around many islets and through passages between them. In nearly all of the marinas you can find the traditional konobas by the sea, offering local food from the sea and from the island pastures, where you will often see herds of sheep. The sandy beach in the Lojena cove on the Levrnaka island, steep cliffs on the southern sides of the outer islands and the blue lagoon of the Žakan island are only a few of the most famous attractions in Kornati. Next to the Kornati archipelago is the island of Žut, popular among sailors who use it as a home base for visiting Kornati, while the towns of Murter and Betina preserve the maritime and ship-building traditions. Another interesting route in the Šibenik area is visiting the Krka National Park and sailing to the town of Skradin via the eponymous river, which enters the sea through the St. Anthony Channel protected by the St. Nicholas Fortress. The city of Šibenik is located at the end of the channel, and the Krka river (which you are already sailing on when you are in Šibenik) continues towards the north, entering Skradin through lake Prokljan. You can then enter the national park either on the park's boat, or by hiking the 4km trail. Seeing Skradinski buk, the first and most beautiful of the Krka waterfalls, cascading over the tufa barriers will help you understand why visitors from around the world flock to this national park. We would like to add that this is just the beginning: you can continue the pleasant journey on this river, whose Roški slap waterfall, Visovac island monastery, or the rarely visited Manojlovac waterfall are places of indescribable beauty – all accessible to sailors. Moreover, the beautiful karstic river Krka is exceptionally warm in the summer months, so swimming in it is a welcome addition to sea activities. This is precisely why Skradin is swarming with people in the summer months, which contributed to the development of its gastronomical offer: scallops and the Skradin risotto are particularly delightful. The coastal part of the Šibenik archipelago is easily accessible to vessels since its most prominent island, Žirje, is located only 12 nautical miles from the coast. The sheltered moorings and small island and coastal towns live life to the fullest, and sailing has stolen their hearts. Whether you set your course south towards central Dalmatia or north towards the Zadar archipelago, you are sure to find safe mooring and beautiful authentic Mediterranean vistas.

HIDDEN ROUTES Thanks to its waters being easily accessible to all vessels, the Šibenik archipelago isn't a place where you can easily encounter completely peaceful areas. However, the most persistent sailors will find a nook to enjoy the isolation and beautiful nature. Such tranquillity can be found in the few coves on the northern side of the Kornat island and the southern coasts of Žut. Tetovišnjak is an uninhabited island which offers a beautiful beach on its eastern cape, sheltered from the western winds. The same applies to the eastern area of the island of Zlarin, as well as a series of little islets spreading to the north towards the nearby Grebaštica. A visit to the lighthouses in the area, especially Blitvenica on the open sea, is a good idea in nice weather. Although it is by no means hidden, the museum honouring the Croatian inventor Faust Vrančić on the Prvić island is rarely visited by sailors.

NATURE / UNESCO

- The Kornati National Park, the densest archipelago in the Mediterranean, and the Krka National Park, a natural and karstic phenomenon, are sure to entrance any visitor to this area of Dalmatia
- Zlarin is an island known for its corals, while Krapanj, an island with the lowest elevation in Croatia, is famous for sponge gathering
- The most precious cultural monument in the Šibenik area is the Cathedral of St. James from the Renaissance period
- The little island of Visovac lies in the very middle of a lake on the Krka river and it is home to a Franciscan monastery
- The attractive walking trail alongside St. Anthony's Channel is perfect for recreation

CULTURE / CUISINE

- The cape Ploče (Punta Planka) is located in the vicinity of Rogoznica, and it was known to Greek sailors as Diomedes' Cape in the centuries B.C., since it was believed that Diomedes himself sailed there after the Trojan War
- The aim of Latinsko Idro Regatta is to bring back the memories of a certain maritime lifestyle and the use of a specific type of boat
- The International Children's Festival is a renowned cultural manifestation which has been taking place for over half a century, and it is one of the symbols of the city of Šibenik
- The unique combination of Continental and Mediterranean cuisine created delicacies such as scallops, Miljevac prosciutto, bread baked under the peka (a lid covered with hot coals), turkey and rooster baked in a brick oven, all accompanied by exquisite wines, such as the Babić, Maraština and Debit

The archipelago of central Dalmatia is bursting with superlatives: it is home to the tallest and longest Croatian island, its capital is the city of Split as the largest Croatian coastal town, this area of the Croatian coast has the least islands, but they are spatially the largest... The amount of these superlatives is enough to make this area the most popular sailing destination for many. This also means that the sailing season draws in the largest number of vessels of all kinds. Such popularity is both a blessing and a curse, but if you are aware of the fact that you cannot be alone in this area at the height of the tourist season, you can choose to visit the most popular or the most hidden corners of the central Dalmatia islands, enjoying another special voyage through the Croatian coast. Due to their size, all islands have their own unique properties, reflected in nature, language, as well as oenological and cultural aspects. As beacons of life and culture, the island towns preserve the traces of ancient times, while in the summer months they become a stage for show-casing the Mediterranean way of life, happily co-existing with the many visitors from all over the world. They are the epicentre of fun and excellent gastronomy, complementing the natural attractions accessible to sailors. In their vicinity and on routes sailing through them, you will find sheltered bays with crystal clear sea, pebbled and sandy beaches, as well as small islands in all shapes and forms. The offer on land perfectly complements the one on sea: Diocletian's Split and the mediaeval Trogir are must-see destinations when sailing through central Dalmatia, rounding up the offer for sailors with their urban amenities.

POPULAR ROUTES

When sailing through central Dalmatia, you must pay a visit to the city of Hvar on the eponymous island (the sunniest island in Croatia – another superlative) and the small Paklinski Otoci archipelago in its vicinity. Thanks to its irresistible historical charm and rich architecture surpassing in many ways the heritage of most Croatian islands, the Hvar port, as the hub of nautical ports in the region, is constantly brimming with visitors. You can somewhat escape the crowds in the small archipelago off the coast of Hvar, offering several excellent anchorage points, the ACI marina on the island of Sv. Klement, as well as fantastic restaurants serving locally sourced seafood. The beautiful natural attractions are complemented by Hvar's night life and its offer is equally interesting to all visitors, young and old, which makes visiting this gem, that has just celebrated 150 years of tourist offer, a unique experience. The island of Vis is located in the immediate vicinity of Hvar and its beauty also attracts many sailors. This island used to be a military base and it offers excellent mooring possibilities, while Komiža (the most famous fishing port in the Adriatic) lets you soak in the rich history of life in this area. However, the main reason for visiting Vis is its remarkable nature. Not to be missed are the Blue Cave on the island of Biševo, known all over the world, the Stiniva bay shaped like an amphitheatre in the south of Vis, the Budikovac islet with its beautiful turquoise lagoon and pebbled beaches, and the Green Cave on the island of Dobri otok. The sandy beach of Stončica cove rounds up the sailing trip around Vis, but it is another beach that holds a magnetic attraction for sailors. The Zlatni Rat beach on the island of Brač is a unique natural phenomenon and it owes its shape to sea currents. Constant winds make sure that this lovely pebbled beach remains a favourite destination for fans of windsurfing. The city of Split is another favourite of sailors. The numerous cultural events and a rich night life make it an unmissable destination, and often the starting point for sailing through the waters of central Dalmatia. Sailors are also fond of Trogir, which is, just like Split, protected by UNESCO. Must-see sites for all sailors in this part of the Adriatic are the nearby turquoise lagoon, including the island of Krknjaš, and Maslinica on the island of Šolta.

HIDDEN ROUTES

If you find yourself on Biševo, make sure to visit the Medviđa Špilja cave, where you can experience a real diving adventure and explore the world which was once the home of the Mediterranean monk seal. The southern coasts of the islands of Šolta and Brač offer plenty sheltered coves where you can enjoy pristine tranquillity and beautiful nature. A different kind of tranquillity can be found in the interior of the islands. The north of Hvar offers the ideal opportunity for mooring in the coastal towns of Jelsa, Vrboska and Starigrad, where you can visit the nearby villages and explore amazing offer of local wines and traditional gastronomy. Exploring the interior of the island of Vis is equally exciting, and a visit to the Blaca Hermitage on the island of Brač is one of the nicest excursions to take when you disembark your vessel. You can also visit the abandoned village of Malo Grablje on the island of Hvar, and continue towards the home of lavender, the neighbouring village of Velo Grablje, where you can explore the Croatian coast in a different, and more complete, way. Should you opt to visit the town of Omiš, you will have an opportunity to discover the bluegreen side of our coastline through rafting on the warm Cetina river.

The crown jewel of the Croatian Adriatic is the city of Dubrovnik, surrounded by mediaeval stone walls not to be missed when sailing in the south of Croatia. Many sailors begin their exploration of the Croatian coast in Dubrovnik, and whether you're sailing around the nearby Elaphiti islands, or your route takes you south to the Mljet National Park or west to the Pelješac peninsula (a kind of a homeland of Croatian wine production), there will be plenty of reasons to enjoy yourself. You will discover even more reasons if you visit the most remote Croatian inhabited island and nature park, Lastovo, or the mediaeval Korčula, hiding the finest varieties of Croatian white wines, among other things. Would you like to taste fish delicacies typical for the depths of the Croatian southern sea, such as the grouper, experience the five-centuries-long tradition of preparing pasta, or sample the famous oysters from Ston? If gastronomy isn't your thing, you might want to combine sailing and hiking. Or sailing and diving, windsurfing, or kitesurfing on the sandy banks of the Neretva river? Although some consider this area just a stop on their way to further explore the Croatian coast, others find it to be a source of pleasure for all of the senses. This is the area with the fewest marinas in Croatia, which many deem to be an additional reason for enjoying their stay.

POPULAR ROUTES

Visitors to this area should spend at least one day in Dubrovnik, and sailors who rent vessels often spend the day before or after their sailing trip in the city, which perfectly complements their journey. For visitors arriving by sea, the Komolac marina or the Gruž anchorage are good options for visiting the city, while a nice alternative used by many visitors coming to Croatia from the south is the charming town of Cavtat. The first must-see destination in the vicinity of Dubrovnik are the Elaphiti islands, an archipelago with excellent anchorage and mooring sites, such as the island of Šipan, which also boasts an excellent gastronomic offer. The new ACI marina in Slano is an alternative starting point for the visitors to the Dubrovnik area. Sailors like to continue their journey towards the Mljet National Park, the lush green beauty completely covered in dense pine forests, with sheltered coves on the northern side of the island, some of them, such as Prožura, reminiscent of small lakes. Due to the frequent pirate attacks in its history, Mljet is the only one of the inhabited Croatian islands with no coastal towns, which certainly doesn't make it any less charming. Apart from visiting the national park, you can also relax on the sandy beaches in the south of the island, as well as the lovely coves on its southwestern coast. Continuing your journey to the nearby Korčula, a beautiful mediaeval island whose architecture was greatly influenced by Venice, you will encounter a small archipelago and the sandy beaches of Lumbarda, a true paradise for anyone who can visit by boat. The beauty of the town of Korčula complements the beauty of the interior of the island which is the home to the most famous traditional Croatian variety of wine, the Pošip, but also to the more exotic (at least when it comes to the Croatian wine scene) Grk. The only dilemma encountered by sailors is which side of the island to sail. Our advice? Sail all the way around. Its northern and more indented southern coast aren't as popular among visitors as some other nautical gems in the Adriatic. If you visit the south of Korčula, it will seem as if the far-away island of Lastovo is right in front of you, and all the efforts to reach it will most certainly be worth it. You will discover an extremely indented coastline, and this island is known for good fishing, as well as being a good place to enjoy freshly caught lobster. We would like to add that a pleasant hike to the largest (and eponymous) town of Lastovo is a welcome break from staying on your boat, and you will be able to enjoy unique architecture and an atmosphere of a town frozen in time.

HIDDEN ROUTES The entire Pelješac peninsula could be considered one long hidden route of unprecedented beauty and innumerable possibilities to enjoy the coast and the interior of the peninsula, known for producers of world-renowned excellent wines. Towns on Pelješac with a nautical infrastructure are Orebić, whose marina can receive smaller vessels, and Trpanj, situated in the north-western part of the peninsula across the Neretva river delta, another Croatian coastal gem, particularly popular among kite surfers. On the other side of the peninsula you will find the so-called Boka Falsa area, between the Elaphites and Ston, where you can enjoy peaceful mooring and isolation a stone's throw from Dubrovnik. The Lastovnjaci islands on the north-eastern side of Lastovo are another infrequently visited little paradise. However, you should remain mindful of the weather, since it is prone to change quickly in this area. You need to be even more careful if you wish to visit the uninhabited island of Sušac, with lovely coves on the southern coast, the unyielding lighthouse on its highest peak, and its only inhabitant: a shepherd whose flock of sheep may become a source of a delicious meal.

Thanks to abundant protected areas on the sea and steady winds, Croatia is a true paradise for sailors. For many, sailing means simply navigating the sea, and a large number of sailors come to Croatia to enjoy recreational sailing competitions. However, Croatia is also a host for a large number of athletes who enjoy the sport of sailing at the highest level, from Olympic classes upwards. Assessing the wind and sea currents, the pleasure of piloting under full sails and competing against opponents, and later socialising with them in the evening at the marina, are an indispensable part of sea activities in the Croatian Adriatic. Also, when the weather conditions inland are perfect for skiing, Croatia offers you the opportunity to sail. Its location at the heart of Europe makes it an attractive destination for numerous fans of the sport. It comes as no surprise that over five hundred regattas at various levels of competition are held here annually. The youngest participants can enjoy competing in junior and Olympic class regattas, since world or European championships are held almost every year. The Croatian Olympic team is one of the most successful sailing teams in the world. The quality of Croatian sailors is the main reason why foreign sailors come to Croatian training camps, enjoying favourable sailing conditions throughout the year. Olympic sailing is reserved for talented junior athletes, but there is a large number of sailors who enjoy sailing on yachts in club regattas or highly popular navigation regattas held visiting the most beautiful corners of the Croatian coast. All types and categories of yachts can participate, but commonly yachts sail in the Open division or in the ORC system of handicap racing. The Mrduja Regatta is the oldest and largest regatta in Croatia, first held in 1927, and it brings together over 2000 sailors and about 300 yachts. National sailing championships are also held for neighbouring countries for which the Croatian Adriatic is the closest (and favourite) sea. Croatia is also a popular destination for business regattas, where the applied skills and the spirit of sailing can be used to improve business relations in wondrous natural surroundings off the Adriatic. This is also facilitated by the excellent nautical infrastructure in marinas and a good transport connectivity across Croatia. You can participate in various regattas in Croatia, such as separate competitions for catamaran sailing boats or traditional local wooden boats. Regardless of the type of sailing competition you choose, you are sure to find something that suits you and you will also have the opportunity to meet lots of sailing fans who enjoy competition as much as you do.

The Croatian coast is one of the most attractive nautical destinations in the world, and its beautiful nature, pristine sea, small distances between islands and the mainland, as well as good infrastructure are ideal prerequisites for various sports and entertainment at sea, such as windsurfing, kiteboarding, kayaking and canoeing, deep water soloing, scuba diving or rafting. The Croatian Adriatic abounds in locations whose good position, ideal weather conditions, long tradition and high quality, and licensed schools, have made it a top destination for fans of extreme water sports. For example, the Zlatni Rat beach at Bol on the island of Brač has a long-standing reputation as one of the top windsurfing locations in Europe. Agencies and specialised companies across the Adriatic coast offer kayaking and canoeing tours to micro-locations, since the Croatian Adriatic is one of the most diverse and safest kayaking destinations in the world. When kayaking, your connection with the sea is intense and your freedom of motion unlimited, which allows you to approach any rock, cliff, beach or cave you see. The most popular paddling tourism offer on our coast includes kayaking around the Elafiti Islands near Dubrovnik, the southern slopes of the island of Hvar, or kayaking tours to the Kornati Islands. If you are a fan of paddling, we recommend rafting on some of the rivers by the sea. The Cetina River near Omiš is a popular rafting destination as is the beautiful green Zrmanja River. Deep water soloing on vertical cliffs of our islands, or mountain biking on the islands are only a few of the activities enjoyed by fans of extreme sports. This salty Croatian adventure is perfect for anyone looking to spice things up a bit, seeing that the possibilities for various sports are virtually limitless - and you can combine them with your sailing trip.

KAYAK

The kayak is a safe vessel with which you can cover great distances, and it will also take you to locations inaccessible with any other kind of vessel, and this is exactly why it has an increasing number of fans. Throughout the Adriatic specialised agencies organise half-day, full-day, and even multi-day expeditions with canoes. Although you can row wherever you want, some locations are especially popular. For example, the surroundings of Dubrovnik and the Elaphite Islands. Leaving by kayak from Lokrum or from Dubrovnik it is easy to reach Koločep, an islet known for its wonderful pebble beaches, then to Lopud, dotted with chapels and monasteries from the 16th century, and Šipan, once a favourite destination of Dubrovnik's aristocracy. By kayak from Dubrovnik you can also travel up to eight kilometres to the faraway cove of Zaton, where you can then swim in the crystal clear sea, jump from the rocks into the sea, dive and enjoy the beaches. The village of Sali on Dugi Otok is the starting point for kayaking through the Kornati Islands. This archipelago of 147 small islands and rocks is ideal to explore by kayak, to get to the hidden and shallow coves inaccessible by other vessels and to have a refreshing swim in the complete wilderness. The southern slopes of the island of Hvar are, due to their inaccessibility, steep cliffs and untouched nature, also a favourite destination for kayakers. Also increasingly popular are the environs of Split; leaving by kayak from Marjan you can experience the city's sights from the sea, get to the island of Čiovo, or go all the way to Trogir. Skradin on the other hand is the starting point for kayaking on the River Krka and Lake Prokljan, and also popular for this sport is the River Zrmanja which flows into the Novigrad Sea, with its perfectly clear water, magnificent, 200 metre deep canyon and magical waterfalls.

The first windsurfers came to the Adriatic in the beginning of the 1970s. These WINDSURFING were mostly German and Dutch enthusiasts who sailed on their boards in locations which were mostly isolated at the time. This adrenaline sport soon took over the world and the local population along the coast. From Istria in the north to Dalmatia down south, the Adriatic coastline is brimming with excellent windsurfing locations. Cape Kamenjak, located on the Premantura Peninsula south of Pula, is a particularly popular site for windsurfers. The ground configuration ensures that it is always windy here, be it cold bora winds, which often reach up to 40 knots, or the mistral winds, blowing steadily day in day out throughout the season. Another popular Istrian site is Savudrija, with plentiful winds, and surfers often visit the protected Preluk Bay, situated between Rijeka and Opatija, as well as Baška on the island of Krk, for the beautiful beaches and, once again, for the reliable, steady winds. The most famous windsurfing location is Bol on the island of Brač, more specifically, the area surrounding the unique Zlatni Rat, a pebbled cape about a thousand metres long, lapped by the crystal-clear sea. Southern and western winds are the strongest here, making it a very popular location for windsurfing. Soft mistral winds in the morning, increasing in speed as the day passes, are ideal for beginners and more serious windsurfers. In summer, Zlatni Rat is visited by numerous global windsurfing stars and important international competitions are also often held here. Viganj on Pelješac is another destination not to be missed by serious windsurfers, where mistral winds usually gain great strength during the afternoon hours. Viganj is open for windsurfing throughout the year since the sea temperature does not drop below 15 degrees Celsius and there is always plenty of wind. A string of micro-locations offers excellent conditions for surfing; strong and steady winds and the warm climate are ideal for sea stunts

KITEBOARDING

Kiteboarding is an incredibly fast-growing sport with the number of enthusiasts growing with each passing day, and in 2016 it was introduced as an Olympic discipline. It is very easy to grasp the basic principles of kiteboarding, and the deciding factor is not strength, but skill and technique. In the beginning of the 21st century, there were only several hundred kiteboarders, while today the sport is practised in almost all countries of the world. Naturally, Croatia is one of them. Zlatni Rat, i.e. Bol on the island of Brač, has a long surfing tradition, and thanks to ideal weather conditions it became a popular destination for kiteboarding fans, who enjoy having a large and safe beach at their disposal. Local clubs and companies organise beginner courses and offer all the necessary infrastructure and technical support for more experienced kiteboarders, including highly trained staff. The large, shallow and sandy Ždrijac beach in Nin near Zadar is another world-famous kiteboarding location. You will be welcomed by qualified instructors and professional training equipment – Cabrinha and Flysurfer kites and boards, neoprene suits and special kiteboarding trapezes. The channel between the Pelješac Peninsula and the island of Korčula is famous for its strong winds, which helps make Viganj and Kućište top destinations for kiteboarders from all over Europe. They are easily accessible by car or boat but, due to the crowds in the middle of summer, we recommend visiting them off-season, from April to November, when there is also more wind. Kiteboarders also visit the Neretva river delta, on the other side of Pelješac, where the vast shallows and sandy bottom have proven ideal for this sport. On the northern part of the Adriatic, the most popular kiteboarding site is cape Premantura, the very edge of the Istrian Peninsula.

RAFTING

Rafting is done on rivers, but due to the immediate vicinity of the sea and large tourist resorts on the Adriatic, rafting along the Cetina and Zrmanja rivers can be counted as activities at sea. Many will find that combining a summer sailing trip with a refreshing river rafting experience is a nice addition to their stay on the Croatian seaside. The Cetina River flows into the sea near the old pirate town of Omiš, only 30 kilometres from Split. Its rafting course is 12 kilometres long and stretches from the village of Penšići to Radmanove mlinice. The course difficulty class ranges between II and III (on a I to VI scale), which means it is relatively easy, does not require any special physical fitness training or experience, and is suitable for children accompanied by parents. You will pass through a magnificent canyon on the course, see dense forests, waterfalls, caves and watermills. You can also swim in the clear river waters, shower underneath the waterfalls at Studenci, dive into the water from nearby rocks and explore the caves. Its extraordinary green colour, a beautiful canyon and a waterfall give the Zrmanja River its reputation as one of the most beautiful European rivers. In winter, it is wild and unpredictable, but during the summer it is quiet and peaceful, which makes it a great destination for rafting enthusiasts. The rafting tour starts at the village of Kaštel Žegarski, where the participants are provided with the necessary equipment and a short briefing on safety. Here, Zrmanja looks like a creek passing through a wide field, but the course soon becomes more interesting since it quickly leads to the Krupa River delta flowing into Zrmanja, and afterwards to the 12-metre high Veliki Buk waterfall, where guides lower the boats, and the paddlers have to slowly and carefully descend in order to continue their adventure. Zrmanja then turns livelier and faster, with many small waterfalls and various natural barriers. Even so, it stays quite safe and not that difficult (even for beginners) all the way to the end of the course in the village of Muškovci.

Unique in so many ways, Croatia has roots extending from ancient times and a great cultural wealth which tells of its turbulent history, from the Roman era to the Renaissance and Baroque periods, and Ottoman conquests, right up to the present day. This cultural wealth is exceptionally appealing to all those who visit the country. If we then include in this the amazing natural beauty which attracts visitors throughout the year, the 8 national parks, 11 nature reserves and the numerous UNESCO world heritage sites, Croatia can truly be called a country of incredible magnetic attraction.

Yes, Croatia is all that and so much more. It is the home of the necktie, the parachute, the torpedo, the mechanical pencil, the filament light bulb, the world's fastest electric car, the Dalmatian dog, Marco Polo, one of the oldest cities and parliaments in Europe, the second longest stretch of defensive walls in Europe, the smallest cathedral, the oldest arboretum, the oldest film festival in the world, and the birthplace of great athletes.

And last but by no means least – the Croats themselves! The Croatian people and their kindness are a magnet that keeps drawing tourists back. Sometimes the hospitality of the locals will make you wonder whether you are in your own home or simply – on holiday in Croatia!

CUSTOMS AND TAX
STATUS OF FOREIGN
BOATS AND YACHTS

Any vessel entering the EU Customs Union may be subject to control of the customs authorities.

In order to perform customs controls and procedures, it is important to determine the customs status of the vessel. Owners and users of any vessel that has a community goods status are therefore advised to carry the appropriate documentation on board as proof.

Ownership of the vessel, entry in a vessel register of an EU Member State, or the flag flown on the vessel do not constitute proof of the vessel's community goods status.

The following may be used as evidence that a vessel has a community goods status:

- a T2L document or
- · original invoice or
- certificate from a tax authority or other available certificate of VAT payment.

  Vessels that do not have a community goods status may be allowed temporary admission in accordance with the provisions of EU customs legislation.

  Temporary admission shall be granted on the condition that:
- The vessels have been registered outside the EU Customs Union under the name of persons established outside the EU Customs Union;

 The vessels are being used by a person established outside the EU Customs Union.

Additional information on customs controls of vessels used for sports and recreational purposes and on authorisation of temporary admission is available on the Croatian Customs Administration website: https://carina.gov.hr/UserDocsImages//5231//Uputa%200%20provedbi%20postupka%20privremenog%20uvoza%20plovila%20u%20privatne%20svrhe.pdf

A search and rescue at sea service is organised in the Republic of Croatia, managed by the National Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre (MRCC) in Rijeka, which is on duty 24/7.

In case of accident at sea, call 195, free telephone number of the Search and Rescue at Sea service, accessible via a fixed or mobile network. You can also ask for assistance via the nautical VHF and radio channel 16 or the unique European emergency telephone number 112, which will transfer the call to MRCC Rijeka.

Users of the free multilingual smartphone app "Nautical Information Service (nIS)", provided by the Ministry of the Sea, Transport and Infrastructure, can call the free 195 number in case of accident at sea, whereby caller location will be automatically sent to the rescue service, thus significantly reducing the search time for the victims.

Yachts and boats shall sail not closer than 50 metres from the borders of an arranged swimming area or 150 metres from the coast of a natural swimming area.

Motor boats and speedboats (jet boats, jet skis, floatation boats etc.) can only glide in areas where this is allowed, which should not be closer than 300 m from the coast.

Within the area of 150 metres off the coast, all sailing vessels are required to sail with due care, with a speed not exceeding 5 knots, while in the area of 150-300 metres off the coast, all sailing vessels are required to sail with due care, with a speed not exceeding 8 knots.

In order to protect their own lives and the lives of other participants of sea traffic as well as to preserve their own and other persons' property, sailors shall:

- follow regular and outstanding weather reports
- · follow the stipulated speed limits in the coastal area
- regularly check the vessel and equipment for faults and sufficient quantities of fuel and drinking water
- · not sail while under the influence of alcohol or other opiates
- not sail away from the coast more than allowed for specific vessels
- not overload the vessel above the set limit on maximum number of passengers
- use official naval navigation maps and publications
- use the official mobile app "Nautical Information Service (nIS)", provided by the Ministry of the Sea, Transport and Infrastructure, which contains up-todate information required for safe navigation, available 24/7
- in case of accident at sea, immediately call the free number 195 of the Search and Rescue at Sea Service of the MRCC in Rijeka

Ultra Sailing, a company based in Split, was founded in 1995 with the intention of organising commercial sailing activities. In more than two decades of navigating the waters of the yacht charter business, our achievements include being successful representatives of Beneteau, the biggest sailing yacht and motorboat manufacturer in the world, since 2000, with sales offices and after-sales support service in Split in the centre of the city port; in addition to being representatives for Fountaine Pajot, renowned French maritime construction company specialising in catamarans; and amassing a charter fleet that includes 45 Beneteau cruising yachts and eight Fountaine Pajot catamarans, divided among our four charter bases (Trogir, Split, Pula, and Dubrovnik). We organise standard Saturday - Saturday charter, in addition to sailing school, team-building programmes, and one way rental from Trogir and Split to Dubrovnik and vice-versa. We offer full support in equipping Beneteau sailboats: delivery, berth in Croatia, technical support, maintaining and equipping sailboats, boat registration, charter management and sale of used Beneteau sailboats; a sailing school with which we started our business in 1995 and which boasts a group of over 1500 participants, an international ISPA certificate, and a permit from the Ministry of Education of the Republic of Croatia to conduct our own educational sailing programme.
