Welcome to Croatia!

Unique in so many ways, Croatia has roots extending from ancient times and a great cultural wealth which tells of its turbulent history, from the Roman era to the Renaissance and Baroque periods, and Ottoman conquests, right up to the present day. This cultural wealth is exceptionally appealing to all those who visit the country. If we then include in this the amazing natural beauty which attracts visitors throughout the year, the 8 national parks, 11 nature reserves and the numerous UNESCO world heritage sites, Croatia can truly be called a country of incredible magnetic attraction.

Yes, Croatia is all that and so much more. It is the home of the necktie, the parachute, the torpedo, the mechanical pencil, the filament light bulb, the world's fastest electric car, the Dalmatian dog, Marco Polo, one of the oldest cities and parliaments in Europe, the second longest stretch of defensive walls in Europe, the smallest cathedral, the oldest arboretum, the oldest film festival in the world, and the birthplace of great athletes.

And last but by no means least – the Croats themselves! The Croatian people and their kindness are a magnet that keeps drawing tourists back. Sometimes the hospitality of the locals will make you wonder whether you are in your own home or simply – on holiday in Croatia!

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS

The Republic of Croatia has implemented the customs legislation of the European Union on its territory, and the national legislation has been aligned with the regulations of the European Union. The import of personal luggage is exempt from import duties, without any limitations regarding its value, and this applies to every individual- passenger who enters the EU customs area, regardless of whether they carry their luggage with them or if it arrived separately, providing that the passenger can prove to the person responsible for its transport that all indicated luggage was declared simultaneously at departure.

Items that are in the personal luggage of the passenger, which by its type and quantity are not for resale but solely for the personal use of the passenger and members of their family, is exempt from import duties if its total value does not exceed the equivalent value of 300,00 €, or for air and sea transport the value of 430,00 €. This exemption applies to each passenger individually, and can be applied only once per day. Those items where the value exceeds the specified amount or are not considered to be personal luggage are subject to customs duties and value added tax (and possibly excise duties as well). The luggage of passengers who are under 15 years of age is exempt from import duties up to a total value of the equivalent of 150,00 €, regardless of the mode of transport used.

Passengers are obliged to report to the Customs Service when they are carrying the equivalent of 10,000.00 € or more in cash, whatever the currency, or in any other means of payment, such as cheques, whenever they enter or leave the EU.

Foreign nationals and Croatians who are residents of third countries may temporarily bring in items for their personal use, as well as for the use of their family members, without being liable to import duties. Also, people residing in the EU may temporarily export items they need during their stay in a third country. The personal belongings of passengers include any items, whether new or used, which a traveller may reasonably need for his or her personal use during the journey excluding all goods being imported for commercial purposes. Examples of personal items are: video cameras, portable TV sets and audio devices, cameras, laptops, PCs, camping, sailing, scuba diving, skiing, skating and hiking equipment, caravans, pleasure crafts, portable medical devices with accessories (if necessary to the passenger), pets and the like. The import of such goods is made by oral declaration without any particular customs formalities at the border crossing. The re-export of the above items is done in the same way.

When a passenger imports or exports valuable professional equipment, when entering or leaving the Republic of Croatia, he must complete a "List of Goods" in triplicate at the border. If necessary, he must attach an insurance document to pay any customs duties which may arise. Natural persons, who are neither residents nor have a usual address in the European Union, are entitled to a refund of value added tax (PDV) on the goods they have purchased in Croatia, if the value of the goods exceeds 98,21 € per purchase. The refund is obtained upon presentation of the completed form PDV-P, i.e. Tax free form that must be certified, within 3 months of the date stated on the invoice or delivery note, by Customs when taking the goods out of the European Union. Foreign citizens must submit the VAT refund request within six months of the date of purchase. It is not possible to certify the PDV-P form or Tax-free form once the goods have been carried out of the European Union.

CAMPING

CROATIA – A TRUE EUROPEAN CAMPING DESTINATION

All the natural and cultural beauties of this country are just a fraction of the mosaic that makes Croatia a desirable destination for a holiday, at any time of the year. What makes it the perfect choice for campers is its location and proximity. One can reach Croatia from every part of Europe with just a few hours' drive, especially with the latest, modern motorways, and you can also be on the accessible Croatian coast within a one or two hour flight from all the major European cities.

Due to the good transport infrastructure in Croatia itself and the transport connection with various parts of the country, you can spend your ideal holiday in more than one campsite, if you wish you can travel the entire country, and along with new destinations and attractions stay in different campsites. And you'll find out more about how to do that in this brochure.

The campsites mentioned here are divided according to clusters, that is to say by regions and destinations. The basic information about each campsite is presented here, accompanied by photography, as well as texts and illustrations with captions of the basic facilities found in the campsites. In the brochure you will find details about the significant Croatian islands, of which there are over a thousand, as well as information about the beaches along the Croatian Adriatic, of which more than a hundred boast the Blue

Flag, the international ecological symbol of the cleanliness of the sea and beaches. Croatian campsites are not only located along the coast, there are also campsites inland, large or small, intended for families with children, youngsters looking for adventure, people who want to enjoy thermal spas or those who want to discover the beauty of the Croatian interior. Every camper will find exactly what they want in Croatia: from the high-end modern camping parks, with their various facilities, where you can rent a superb mobile home or other accommodation, all the way to little places, which offer a stay in the garden or courtyard of a family run campsite, plus there is also Robinson Crusoe style camping and even glamping. Croatia is known for its naturist tradition so there are campsites for advocates of naturism, which began to appear quite early on along the Croatian coast, and which today are recognised above all for their high quality accommodation and service, but also for the safety and the beauty of the landscape which surrounds them.

Croatia can be really proud of the standards of its campsites, which is reflected in numerous prestigious international awards and acknowledgments. If this is your first time camping in this country, we are confident that you will come again. Just as many campers have already done for decades. Let your enjoyment of Croatia's campsites and our beautiful country begin!

NATURISM – CAMPING IN THE SPIRIT OF TRADITIONAL CROATIAN TOURISM

Naturism in Croatia has a long tradition. It is believed that it started on the island of Rab during the 1930s. The story goes that Dr Richard Ehrmann from Vienna, the first president of the International Naturist Federation, proclaimed Rajska beach a naturist beach back then. Subsequently, in August 1936, the first to swim naked on the same island were Britain's King Edward VIII and his beloved, the American Wallis Simpson. In the following decades, naturist campsites have sprung up all along the Croatian coast.

Thus Croatia became the first European country to open its doors to lovers of naturism; those who see themselves as lovers of a life spent in harmony with nature, extolling health and recreation in a way so as to return to nature and recapture our natural equality. Today it is regarded by naturists as an ideal way of life, and a lifestyle. Croatia has the third-largest number of naturist campsites in Europe, with about 30,000 places, the larger number of which are in Istria and the Kvarner region. Indeed, the very first naturist campsite in Europe, Konversada, is in Istria. A common characteristic of Croatian naturist campsites is the high level of security, accommodation, beauty and peace. In accordance with the values of naturism, which are based on promoting a healthy lifestyle, nudist campsites are rich in sports and recreational facilities. Generally speaking, many believe that the campsites of the highest quality are those intended for naturists. It is self-evident that naturists will find all their needs fulfilled here. There are three types of campsite offering accommodation for naturists:

First there are dedicated naturist campsites with beaches that are exclusively for their use. Second, there are mixed campsites for naturists and others, in which one part of the site is intended for naturists and the other part for other campers. In these campsites one part of the beaches will be reserved exclusively for naturists, and the rest for the other campers, separated from the naturist part. In these campsites, the zones for naturists also have their own separate facilities, sanitation, restaurants, shops and more. The third type of campsite is the 'textile campsite', again with separate beaches for naturists. In these campsites all guests are dressed when going around the site, but they can swim and sunbathe nude on the dedicated naturist beaches. The same campsites also have beaches where it is forbidden to go completely without clothes. This type of campsite will be chosen by those who love to swim and sunbathe naked, but prefer to be dressed for the rest of the day. The specific information about a campsite's naturist provision is given along with a special symbol next to the campsite. Regardless of what you choose, you should realise by now that the high standards of planning, and the great range of activities available in Croatian naturist campsites, means that the perfect tailor-made choice for you is out there, waiting for you, ready to offer you an unforgettable stay on the Adriatic.

CAMPER-VANS, BUNGALOWS, APARTMENTS... AND THAT'S JUST A TASTER! CAMPING VILLAGES, HOLIDAY PARKS & RESORTS

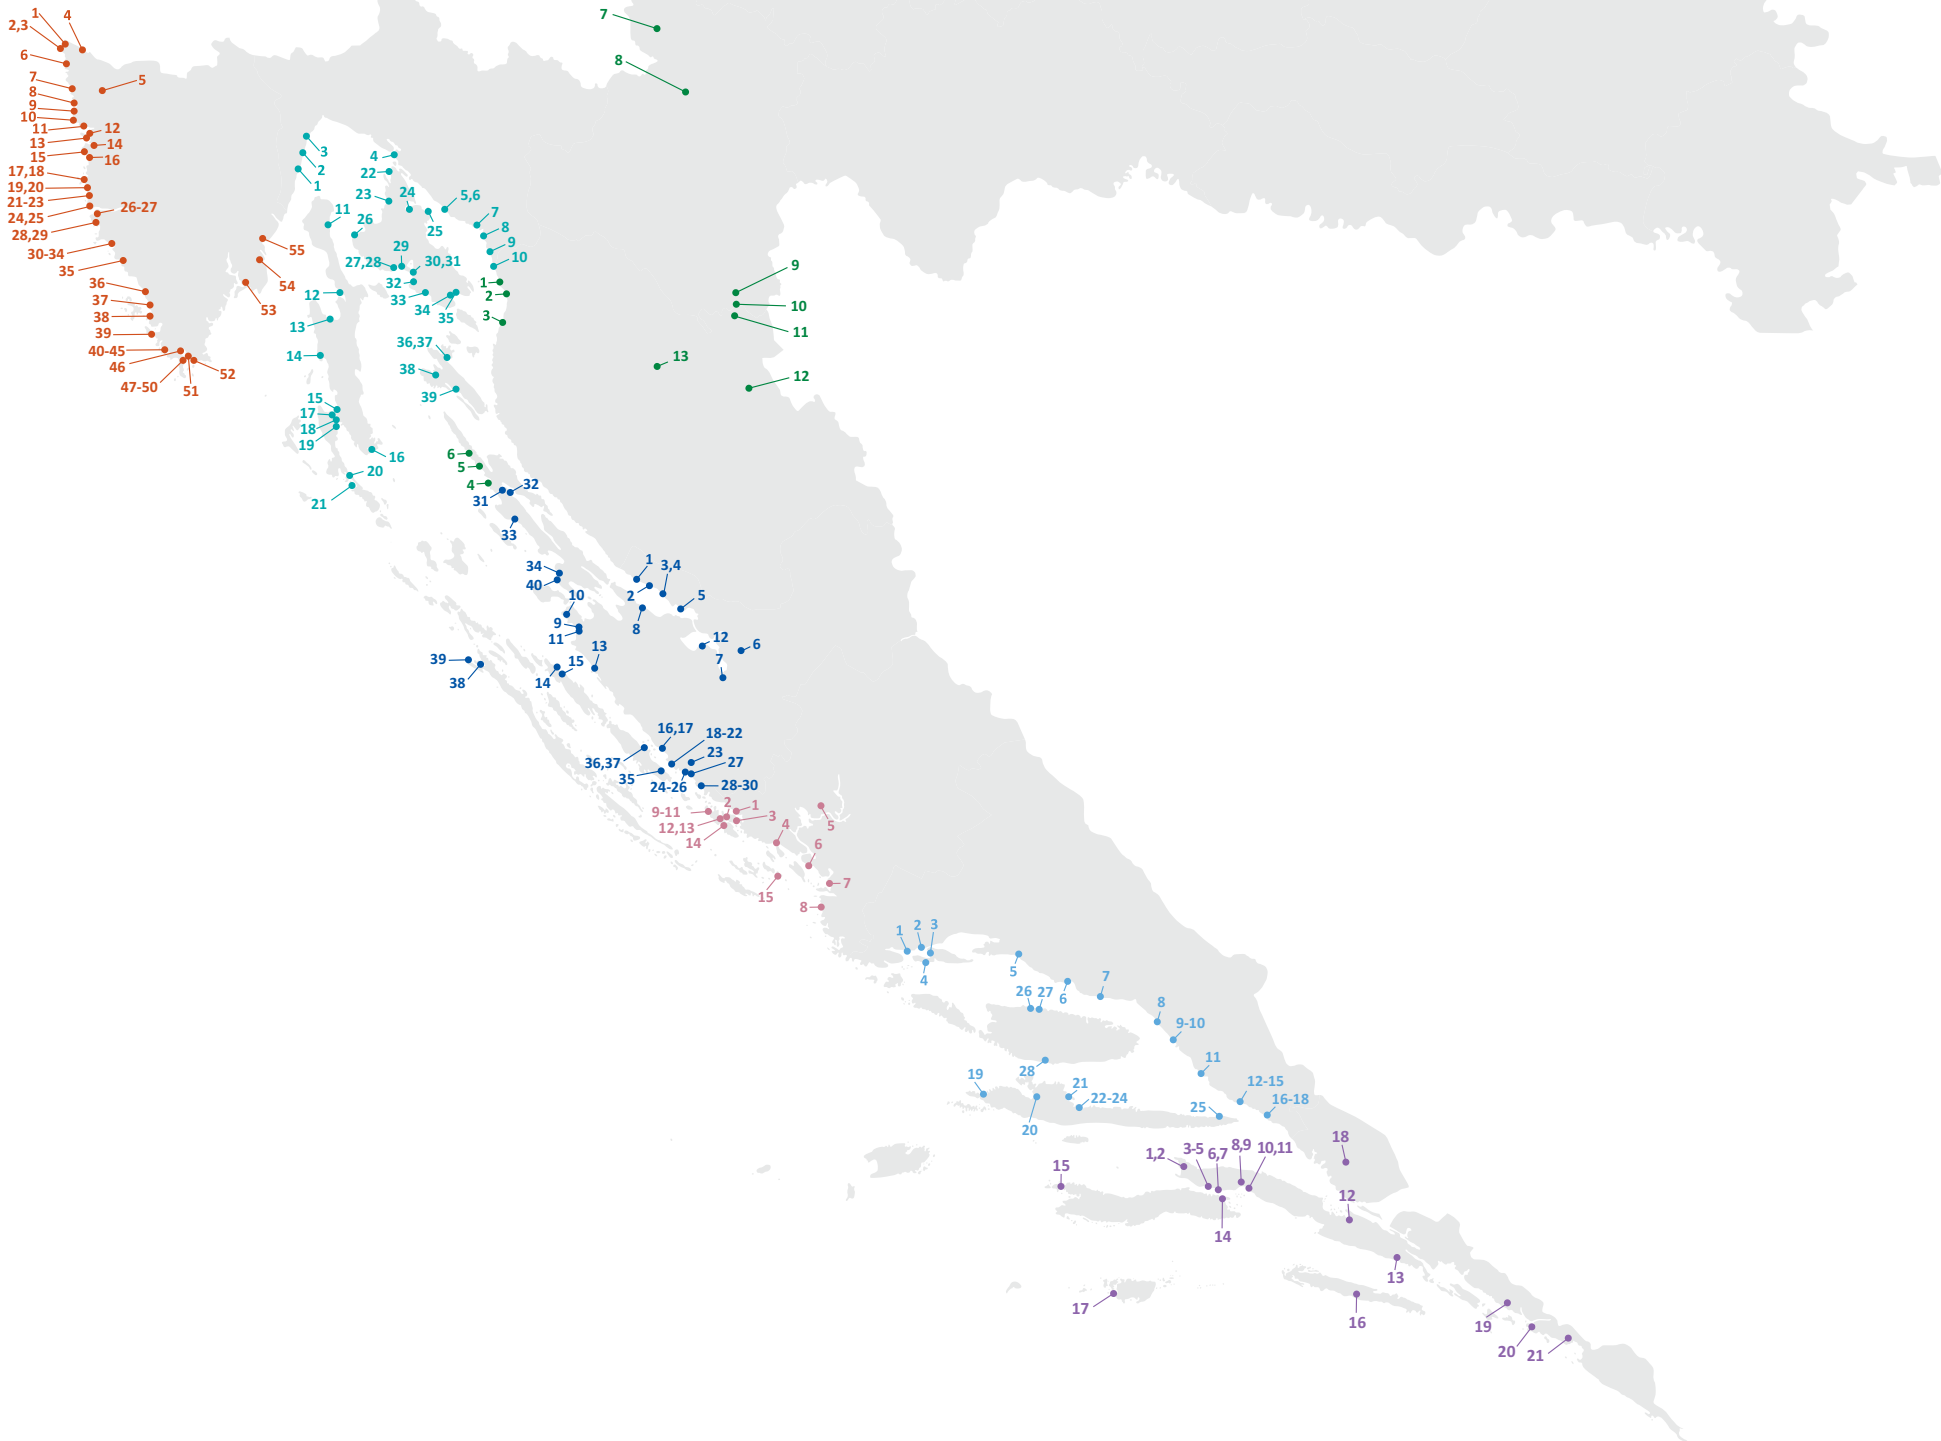

Do you want to spend your well-earned holiday on a campsite, but you don't have what you need to do so? Don't worry! In Croatia's modern campsites you will find camper-vans, bungalows and apartments awaiting you, as well as other similar kinds of rental accommodation. By choosing this unique mode of camping you can treat yourself to an unforgettable holiday in accommodation with all the comforts of home, or even of a top hotel, while at the same time experiencing an unforgettable closeness to nature and a laid-back atmosphere that only campsites provide.

Camper-vans are equipped with all the mod-cons. They have a kitchen, where you can use equipment such as a coffee maker and microwave, living room, bedroom, bathroom with shower, toilet, terrace and more, depending on the category and size you choose. There are smaller and larger camper-vans, from the most basic to the most luxurious, which could have its own spa bath. Whatever you choose, you are guaranteed comfort and the feeling of being at home. You can start your day on the terrace of your rented camper-van, which is usually covered and equipped with table and chairs. From your breakfast-spot in comfort, you can gaze upon the greenery of nature and the blueness of the sea, which is only separated from you by a beach or landscaped garden in some campsites. Some of the camper-vans have a fireplace and barbecue. Other home-comforts with which you'll be fully equipped include air conditioning, TV with satellite channels, as well as docking devices for iPod or iPhone and WiFi Internet. So without a care in the world left to you, the only thing remaining to turn your attention to are the sunbeds lying in anticipation on the terrace of your new home. Your car won't be a problem, as you will find reserved parking spaces next to the camper-van you have rented, or not far from it. In the same way, you can rent bungalows and apartments on Croatian campsites set amongst lush vegetation and a step away from the sea. Like camper-vans, these make up the more modern types of accommodation within the holiday resorts. You will also find wood and stone bungalows on Croatian, which blend in with the local environment, and styled by the environmentally-aware host in the traditions of the area in which the campsite is located. Apartments and bungalows are spacious and well equipped, and in each you will feel like you are at your own summer residence. With your family and friends you can enjoy all the comforts that this type of holiday offers, from the living room with its satellite TV, the kitchen, bedrooms, bathroom, shower, tub on the terrace, and the relaxing shades of green and azure outdoors.

If you are looking for a more 'Robinson Crusoe' type of experience, you could also rent a tent, although you may also find that in a wooden and cane-built bungalow, built using materials and styles from some of Croatia's water-rich areas, where such canes and reeds abound. These bungalows owe their natural airiness to their unique construction. The cane is also well-known as an outstanding soundproofing material, so in such an environment you will enjoy peace and quiet. You will feel for yourself the positive energy that all these accommodation possibilities provide, so don't hesitate to come and experience it in Croatia's campsites.

ISTRIA

Located in the westernmost part of Croatia, bordering Slovenia and Italy, Istria is the largest peninsula in Croatia and is one of the best-developed regions in the country for tourism.

It is criss-crossed by wine and olive oil mercantile routes. With its scenery, diverse cultural events and entertainment programmes as well as a delightful gastronomy and wine it is an ideal destination for many visitors, especially enthusiasts of hilly areas and the blue sea. Multicultural and hospitable, Istria has lots to offer campers both on the beaches with the crystal clear and warm Adriatic Sea, and in its green hinterland. Along the coast, from Umag in the northwest to Pula in the far south and Rabac in the east, there are campsites run by major tourism companies, but also smaller, family-run sites that have two things in common: a great deal of investment in supplying the highest quality in service and equipment, and the prestigious awards of which many are justly proud. In Istria, you can be sure that you will find what you are looking for, whether you are keen to experience the new phenomenon of 'glamping', or are primarily looking for a pleasant stay in camping-resorts that offer you numerous facilities, or, perhaps to spend your holidays in quiet communion with nature. After spending your day sunbathing, swimming or taking part in a range of sporting activities that Istrian campsites offer, get to know the peninsula through cultural events that aim to evoke the history of the region. Sightseeing on the peninsula, walking in the fragrant shade of the woods, as well as the holiday activities in the campsites are all great additions to just lazing on the beach. Do get to know the Istrian interior and enjoy the cobbled streets and beautiful facades of picturesque medieval towns. Many places have been restored and will impress you with their heritage dating back to the peak of the Venetian Republic, whilst other places, such as the former coal-mine at Labin, can boast of their unique industrial history which is re-energising their transformation into tourism venues.

You must complete this journey through time and space with some Istrian specialities. These range from fish and seafood, through truffles – a well-known aphrodisiac – to re-discovered saffron, a highly appreciated spice from ancient times. Gastronomically, Istria is worth getting to know, and year on year justifies its position at the very top of tourism of both Croatia and the region.

UMAG AND NOVIGRAD

Located at the northern gateway to Istria, Umag is a perfect introduction to what Istrian tourism offers and the exploration of Istrian characteristics. Well-known as a venue for the ATP tennis tournament, this city also provides much in the way of tourist accommodation along the coast and in the hinterland. Even the most demanding guest can't fail to be satisfied by the luxury hotels, villas and apartments, which either part of larger tourist resorts or owned by local families, as well as ecologically landscaped and highly-rated campsites. Visitors can go to know wine cellars and olive oil tasting rooms along the bike trails. Cycling is also popular in the nearby Novigrad, once a quiet fishing village, which over the years has become an attractive destination for tourists from Europe and the rest of the world. This city receives increasing numbers of tourists each year, and is well-known for its jagged walls and Istrian Sashimi (local raw fish dishes inspired by Japanese cookery) as well as for 'Istralandia', the first water park in Istria County, which opened in the vicinity of Novigrad.

POREČ AND TAR

The high quality and availability of accommodation on the coast and in the interior, including a series of campsites, make Poreč and its surroundings one of the most important tourist destinations in Croatia. The participants of the Giostra, the festival of events and chivalry competitions, where you can also taste the sweet dishes and wine of the Poreč region, will tell you some of the ancient stories of the well-preserved old town of Poreč, situated on its promontory surrounded by the sea. Indulge in culture by visiting the Euphrasian Basilica which, with its valuable mosaics, is on UNESCO's World Heritage List. Poreč is proud of its local products and pride of place goes both to olive oil, which according to experts has a sophisticated scent and flavour, and Poreč Malvasia wine. Enthusiasts of active holidays will choose this part of Istria for its extensive sports and recreational facilities including water sports. Nearby Tar is a popular destination for campers, who will find some of the largest campsites in Croatia here. The best olive oil in the world has also come from here since time immemorial, as confirmed by the experts of the FAO (the Food and Agriculture Organisation of the United Nations). Relax on the beautiful beaches away from city crowds, enjoy the bike trails, wine routes and olive groves, have fun at folk festivals and learn about the past of this region and its surroundings while travelling on the tourist train along the Parenzana, the historic narrow-gauge railway.

VRSAR AND FUNTANA

Located almost at the mouth of the Lim channel, Vrsar is very interesting tourist destination. The town has been linked with Giacomo Casanova, who stayed there twice and recorded it in his book 'Memoirs'. Today you can learn more about his trips at the festival dedicated to this famous Italian lover. Vrsar is proud of its title as the 'town of sculpture'. Every year since 1991 the Montraker Summer School of Sculpture takes place in the restored 'Montraker' quarry, whose stone, according to some sources, was also used by well-known Florentine sculptors and builders. Vrsar also offers tourists a long-established naturist campsite located in Koversada Park, together with 'textile' campsites and inspiring seaside promenades. Near the 'Casanova' town is Funtana, a charming fishing town that thrives here on the most developed part of the Istrian coast: from the Zelena lagoon in the north to Valkanela bay in the south. Campsites in this corner of Croatia are a good choice for all ages. You can explore the beauty of this part of Istria through horse-rides organised by local equestrian centres and accompanied by experienced guides. More daring visitors will choose a panoramic flight out of the airfield in Vrsar, which provides a bird's eye-view of Istria.

ROVINJ AND BALE

Well-known as the most romantic place in the Mediterranean, the Istrian town of Rovinj, leader of Croatian tourism in this part of the country, will also attract you with its unique old town centre with houses built on the cliffs. From here you can enjoy views of nearby islands, most notably Red Island (Crveni otok) and the island of St Catherine, and you can also learn about the local fishing tradition by investigating one of the symbols of Rovinj – the batana (a type of wooden boat). In the year 1888 a health resort opened, dedicated to poor children who suffered from scrofula and rickets, and this is considered to be the year that tourism officially started in Rovinj. The foundations of modern tourism were laid in the early 20th century with the construction of the first hotel in Rovinj. Today this destination can boast of its variety of cultural and entertainment events which attract a large number of visitors. The artists who come to the town during the Grisia outdoor art exhibition immortalise the beauty of Rovinj. In addition to the availability of high-quality campsites and other accommodation, Rovinj also offers its visitors many sporting activities and wellness opportunities.

Bale is not far from Rovinj, in the southern part of Istria towards Pula. The 45th parallel passes through the area and the small town receives about 2,400 hours of sunshine per year, and perhaps owes some economic success to this. In addition to its ideal climate, Bale can boast an interesting old town, rich cultural events, a nine kilometre-long coastline and camping sites. Dinosaur fossils have been found nearby.

PULA, MEDULIN AND FAŽANA

Like Rome, Pula, the largest city in Istria, was built on seven hills and also has an amphitheatre. The Pula Arena is the sixth largest ancient amphitheatre in the world, and amongst the best-preserved. It is Croatia's largest single ancient monument. It is also well-known as 'Divić-grad' or the town built by fairies, according to some legends. Besides numerous Roman monuments, Pula also has an Austro-Hungarian architectural legacy. The city is the cultural, economic, academic and political centre of Istria county and offers tourism activities throughout the year. James Joyce, the famous writer, stayed in Pula in the early 20th century and today many writers still visit the city during the well-known book fair. Film-makers take part in the long-standing Pula Film Festival, which takes place in the Vespasian Arena in the summer. According to the British Guardian newspaper, it is the largest and the most spectacular outdoor festival in Europe.

There are many campsites in Pula and its surroundings. Ten kilometres away in the town of Fažana you can enjoy views of the Brijuni National Park, an archipelago which turns into a theatre-stage in the summer, thanks to performances given by the Ulysses Theatre Company. Further south of Pula, in the Medulin municipality region and its riviera, there is a two kilometre-long sandy beach and the Cape Kamenjak Nature Park.

RABAC (Photo: I. Pervan)

RABAC

On the eastern coast of Istria about three kilometres below Labin's old town-centre lies this former fishing village, where Richard Francis Burton, diplomat, soldier, world traveller, archaeologist and polyglot, was among the first people to promote it for tourism in the 1870s. The first hotel was built there shortly after his visit to Rabac. After World War II, tourism activities took off in the mid 1950s, when visitors from Germany erected the first tents in the area of today's campsite in the bay of olive groves. This was followed by the construction of hotels, resorts and private accommodation. Today, it is well-known due to its pearly-white sandy beaches and the scent of Mediterranean vegetation. This tourist destination is ideal for families with small children. It is also recommended for foodies. As well as by road, Rabac is linked to Labin by a footpath through, as some claim, the 'fairy woodland'.

ISLAND OF RAB (Photo: I. Biočina)

Contrasts and diversity are the most noticeable features of the Kvarner region, which stretches from the Učka mountain range to the Dalmatian coast. Its long tradition of health tourism began at the time of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, primarily due to its favourable climate and ease of access, and is continued today by numerous wellness and thalassotherapy treatment centres.

The Kvarner region, well-known to campers, comes up trumps with very successful all-season tourism. This much is evident across the whole area: from the Opatija Riviera where, according to historical sources, Croatian tourism began to develop in the mid-19th century, through Rijeka, the third largest city in Croatia and capital city of Primorje-Gorski Kotar county, to Krk and Cres, the largest Croatian islands. Likewise, the islands of Lošinj and Rab have been prominent on the tourist map for a long time, as has the Gorski Kotar region – the ‘green heart of Croatia’, a region of woods and mountains, linking continental and Mediterranean Croatia, encompassing Risnjak National Park and the highest peak, Bjelolasica. Most of the campsites are situated on the islands, where the ecological focus and biodiversity of the Kvarner region come to the fore. Dolphin-watching is another maritime attraction that you can enjoy in the waters just off Lošinj where these mammals swim regularly... perhaps in pursuit of the delicious Kvarner scampi.

This pale red delicacy, together with Vrbnička Žlahtina wine is one of the trademarks of Kvarner eno-gastronomy. But one should not forget Gorski Kotar’s continental specialities, such as mushrooms, wild berries and game dishes, which also hold an important place.

As well as being pivotal in the origins of Croatian tourism, the Kvarner region is also well-known as the cradle of literacy in the Croatian language. The Baška tablet, known to be one of the oldest examples of the use of the Croatian language, was found in Jurandvor, near Baška on the island of Krk. You can learn about the Glagolitic script as used on that tablet along the Baška Glagolitic trail, one of the most original initiatives in this part of Croatia.

You can find additional information about Primorje-Gorski Kotar county and its individual destinations on www.kvarner.hr.

MOŠĆENIČKA DRAGA AND MOŠĆENICE

A very long time ago migrants from Opatija, 15 kilometres away, established themselves here at the base of Učka and on its slopes. Mošćenička Draga developed as the fishing port serving the nearby small town of Mošćenice, located 178 metres above sea level. Having seen the local Mediterranean architecture and traditions along the coast, be sure to visit medieval Mošćenice's ethnographic collection in its museum, where the history of this region is preserved: traditional costumes, tools and other items. Also nearby is toš, an olive mill which is hundreds of years old. Mošćenice is also proud of its rich sacred heritage. Your campsites might well be on one of the pebble beaches in Mošćenička Draga, including that dedicated to St John. But before returning there, revive your spirits in one of the restaurants in this part of the Kvarner region.

LOVRAN

Lovran is well-known for its romantic antique villas such as are found at Ika, Ičići and Medveja, the last supposedly named after Medea the mythical Greek heroine. They were built right on the coast itself, and are part of the world's architectural heritage. Many are now available to stay in. Lovran and its surroundings offer plenty of entertainment and interesting excursions. Active holiday enthusiasts can choose an hour-long hiking path from Medveja to Lovranska Draga, a village in Učka Nature Park situated at 600 metres above sea level, from where there is a beautiful view over the Kvarner Bay. The Rijeka Hiking Trail begins in Lovran and takes you past the most important peaks in the Rijeka area, up to Crikvenica.

OPATIJA

As well as its road connection to Lovran, Ičići and Ika, Opatija also has a 12 kilometre-long coastal promenade which ends in Volosko and where memorials have been erected to famous people who have stayed in Opatija. The construction of the promenade started in the second half of the 19th century, when the first hotels opened there. Well-landscaped parks are one of the defining features of Opatija. The city is approximately 500 kilometres away from Milan, Vienna and Munich which, for visitors from Central Europe, makes Opatija their closest access to warm sea; it is also at the centre of the riviera with the longest tradition of Croatian tourism. You can learn all about the beginnings of tourism in this part of Europe in the Croatian Museum of Tourism, located mainly in Opatija's oldest villa 'Angiolina', in the centre of the park with the same name.

RIJEKA

Located ten kilometres from Opatija, Rijeka is the largest city of the Kvarner region and Primorje-Gorski Kotar county. A stroll along the Corso is just one of the ways to get to know this lively city and its buildings, some of which are the work of famous European architects. There is also the Old Town, and, a little more distant, the Trsat castle, built on a 138 metre-high hill above Rijeka. You find relief from the crowded city on Rijeka's seafront promenades and beaches, in parks, in the sanctuary of Our Lady in Trsat (the largest pilgrimage centre in western Croatia) and in the Rijeka Astronomy Centre, where, in addition to observing the stars, you can enjoy the view over Rijeka bay and the hilly landscape.

CRIKVENICA, SELCE AND NOVI VINODOLSKI

Rijeka is connected by road to Crikvenica, 30 kilometres away, and to nearby Selce, where cardiac, rheumatic and respiratory problems are treated. The town of Selce, together with Crikvenica, continues a tradition of health tourism which began in the late 19th and early 20th centuries in this part of the Kvarner region. A suitable Mediterranean climate, a clear sea and a closeness to nature, the bases on which health tourism developed there, attract tourists even today. Travelling ten kilometres south of Crikvenica you will arrive in Novi Vinodolski. This tourist town and its surroundings are rich in valuable cultural monuments, and are well-known for its bathing areas, especially that in Lišanj bay, and also for the International Summer Carnival.

ISLANDS OF CRES AND LOŠINJ

A rich and varied flora and fauna are not the only attractions of the island of Cres. You can reach Cres either partly by land across the Krk bridge and then by taking the ferry from Valbiska to Merag, or travel direct by ferry from Brestova in Istria to Porozine. Along with the island of Krk, this is the largest Croatian island and it offers accommodation in campsites along the sea. The fact that the German magazine Bild listed the beach at the foot of Lubenice, dedicated to St John, among the 40 most beautiful beaches in the world, giving it a high 15th position, confirms the exceptional nature of this island. The most famous culinary speciality on the island is Cres lamb. In the central part of the island lies Lake Vrana, which, along with with the bridge in Osor, is one of the common links between the islands of Cres and Lošinj, which were once one island. Lake Vrana supplies water to households on both islands.

Good climate conditions and a wonderful location in the middle of the northern hemisphere have made Lošinj known as the island of vitality, and you will surely come to appreciate this title once you stay in its camps. The island was almost uninhabited until the middle of the 13th century, but by the 19th century it developed into one of the leading naval forces in the region. In 1996, in the seabed of Vele Orjule, an islet near the island of Lošinj, the bronze statue of an athlete cleaning himself from sweat and salt – the Apoxyomenos – was found. The statue is priceless and it was even showcased in the Louvre. Today you can see it in the museum in Mali Lošinj which has become its permanent home. Dolphins are also a trademark of this part of the Adriatic, and you can even adopt one at the Blue World Institute in Veli Lošinj.

CRES – Cres is the largest town on the island. It is located in a bay and surrounded by groves where olives are grown for the famous Cres olive oil. The city has an old town centre with tall, narrow houses, as well as the 'lodge' (a small covered market), where locals sell their homemade products today.

MARTINŠĆICA – the second largest town on the island of Cres, located on the west coast and formerly known as the location of the first Croatian distillery for sage essential oil, it has developed today as a tourist destination for families and campers. Inside the historic town centre you will find the church of St Martin and the Franciscan monastery from the 16th century and the Sforza family castle from the 17th century.

MALI LOŠINJ – During the period when the residents of the island of Lošinj were renowned as fine sailors, and the area evolved into one of the main centres of maritime activity in the port on the whole Adriatic coast, just behind Trieste, and it also grew into a shipbuilding centre of European importance. Today, the largest settlement on the island is oriented toward high-quality health tourism and family tourist activities.

KRK

Around 1,400 species of plants, hundreds of kilometres of hiking and biking trails, 2,500 hours of sunshine per year: These are just some of the attractions of the island. All this is connected to the mainland by the one kilometre-long bridge with two concrete arches. Among the popular tourist locations of the famous ‘Golden Island’, are the city of Krk with its old city walls, the town of Baška with its 1.8 kilometre-long beach and the towns of Malinska, Punat, Vrbnik and Njivice. Visitors to the island can test the effectiveness of the therapeutic mud in Klimno Bay, and if you stay at the nearby campsite you will find yourself as near as you can get to here. After refuelling yourself with šurlice pasta and the delicious presnac (a celebrated Krk cake), you can toast to life with the unique Valomet sparkling wine from the sea: this is an entirely indigenous Vrbnik Žlahtina wine which is left to mature at the bottom of the sea.

Krk is the largest city on the island. In the historical centre of the city, within the city walls, you should visit, among other sights, the Kamplin square and the noble Frankopan family’s well-preserved castle, which hosts numerous cultural events during the summer. The Frankopans are remembered by history as great patrons of Croatian culture, politicians, military leaders and businessmen, and the Rector’s Palace was also their residence in Krk.

Punat is situated in the southern part of the island of Krk in one of the most secluded bays on the Adriatic. With its charming narrow streets and its proximity to the islet of Košljun, a gem in this part of Krk, tourists will be attracted to Punat by a rich range of sports activities and also by the oldest and one of the best-equipped marinas in Croatia, whence you can set off for your further exploration of the Adriatic.

Baška is the most famous tourist destination on the island and is located 10 kilometres south of Punat. With its Vela plaža, a pebble beach almost two kilometres-long, and the Baška Tablet, Baška has also now entered the annals of Croatia’s tourist history as the first destination in the country with products and services with halal certification (i.e. in accordance with Islamic regulations). The beauty of Baška’s scenery can be experienced from some of many trails laid out for recreational activities.

ISLAND OF RAB

This island is proud of its naturist bathing traditions that famously took off after an event in 1936, some fifty years after the official start of tourism on the island. The spur came from a family of blue blood: Britain’s King Edward VIII and the love of his life, Wallis Simpson, who, after having visited the old town of Rab, went to the Frkanj peninsula and swam naked in Kandarola bay. The rest is history.

Lopar is situated in the north of the island. It has the greatest number of the most natural beaches on the Adriatic, and where, according to legend, Saint Marinus was born. He was a stonemason and founder of the oldest republic in the world, the Republic of San Marino, with which today this region maintains friendly relations. One of the campsites and the hotel complex are named after the saint.

Banjol is a small tourist town situated facing the town of Rab, two kilometres from its historic centre. It is spread over a hill overlooking the main road and has three bays called Padove, and is known for ecological agricultural products. Campsites there offer interesting opportunities for sports and recreational activities.

LIKA – KARLOVAC

What would it be like to have sandy beaches, one of the world’s most beautiful national parks and the slopes of Croatia’s largest mountains all on your doorstep? Well, you can find out if you visit Lika and Karlovac, a uniquely beautiful region of unblemished natural landscapes, rich in forests, lakes and rivers, where you can enjoy the peace and quiet.

Tourists visiting this part of Croatia can avail themselves of smaller campsites in idyllic rural settings alongside the rivers. Rafting and canoeing safaris can also be enjoyed on those rivers. The region’s crowning glory is the world-famous Plitvice Lakes National Park, whose 16 lakes, all connected via waterfalls, are quite phenomenal. This is the oldest and most-visited national park in Croatia, and is home to a diverse array of flora and fauna. The Northern Velebit National Park is also located here, a part of Croatia’s mightiest mountain chain rising up to divide Lika from the Adriatic Sea. On the northern slopes of this lies Krasno, one of Croatia’s largest mountain resorts. Here, within the Velebit Nature Park, you will find the famous Shrine of Our Lady of Krasno, where believers from all over Croatia gather every year on the Feast of the Assumption (15th of August). As well as religious tourism, or just strolling in some of the most beautiful scenery in the world, or going on longer hikes, tourists can also explore the ever-increasing opportunities for hunting or caving in the Lika-Karlovac region. You will encounter some of the regional highlights at your dinner table too, so make sure you don’t leave Lika before you have tasted Lika’s special variety of potato, which has obtained an official protected status guaranteeing its origin, and škripavac cheese.

And be sure to treat your taste buds to some of the local aperitifs, such as plum or pear brandy, or blueberry liqueur. Karlovac, the capital of the county of Karlovac, can be reached via the historic ‘Josephina’ road from Senj. Senj is the capital of Lika-Senj county and the largest town on the Croatian coast between Rijeka and Zadar. The city of Karlovac lies on four rivers, the Kupa, Korana, Dobra and Mrežnica, and is 60 kilometres from the Croatian capital Zagreb. It is well-known for its old town, which is in the shape of a six-pointed star with a central square and streets intersecting at right-angles.

This region also includes the northern part of the island of Pag, an island of stone, salt, lace, partying, and multiple award-winning cheese redolent of local aromatic herbs. The island is split between Lika-Senj county and Zadar county. On Pag campers will find options to stay in beautiful small natural bays dotted along nicely contoured beaches.

You can find additional information about Lika-Senj county and individual destinations at www.visit-lika.com, and about Karlovac and the surrounding destinations at www.tzkz.hr.

FROM SENJ TO THE PLITVICE LAKES

It is only about 80 kilometres from the capital of Lika-Senj county to the most popular Croatian national park. But you will see and experience so much beautiful scenery on the way that it will seem like the two places are much further apart. Senj has good transport links with the rest of Croatia and the Mediterranean, but this isn't the only draw of Senj as a tourist destination for campers: One of its attractions is Nehaj, a historic fortress, with beautiful views over the Croatian coast and the islands of Rab, Cres, Krk, Goli and Prvić. You can also admire the mountainous regions of Gorski Kotar, Učka and Velebit from there. One of the oldest carnivals in Croatia takes place in Senj during August. Plitvice Lakes with their waterfalls were inscribed on UNESCO's list of World Heritage Sites in 1979. The highest waterfall is 76 metres tall, and the highest lake (Prošćansko) is 134 metres above the lowest lake (Novaković Brod). You can take a break from walking the park's fairytale-like paths and wooden bridges in one of the restaurants or taverns by the largest lake, Kozjak. One of the things contributing to the richness and diversity of the Plitvice Lakes area flora is its geographical position, being only a short distance from the sea, yet located in the Velebit hinterland, and spanning a wide range of altitudes from 418 to 1,279 metres. The park is rich in endemic species, and the species that were first recorded right in this area are particularly valuable. There are also many representatives from the animal kingdom. The bear, the most popular of them, can be seen in Kuterevo, where there is a shelter manned by volunteers from different parts of the world, who look after mainly the young of these large creatures. Lying only an hour's drive from the Plitvice Lakes is Smiljan, the birthplace of Nikola Tesla, one of the world's greatest scientists and innovators, whose discoveries are exhibited here in a well laid-out memorial collection.

KARLOVAC

Built as a six-pointed, star-shaped Renaissance fortress, Karlovac is now the main city of Karlovac county. It is located 112 metres above sea level, in the heart of Croatia and at the intersection of major roads that link Croatia's coastal and Pannonian basin regions. In addition to the 'Josephina' road, the historic roads 'Louisiana' and 'Carolina' also pass through Karlovac. You can camp along the Kupa, Korana, Mrežnica and Dobra rivers, refresh yourself in the clear waters, shoot down the rapids or try your hand at fishing. You can find many of Karlovac's restaurants in the same locations, and on their menus you will find specialities prepared from freshwater fish. If you want to explore the area surrounding the city, Karlovac county has the distinction of the greatest number of fortified caves in Croatia and even in Europe. In most cases, these caves are located in the upper streams of Korana and Mrežnica rivers. Also characteristic of this region are some unusual bridges, including the one at Mrežnički Brig, the longest wooden bridge in Croatia. Visitors to Petrova Gora will also be able to enjoy the natural delights of one of the best-preserved forested landscapes in Croatia's mountainous areas. There is also Dubovac castle, a favourite short excursion for Karlovac's citizens. In summer its fortifications become the backdrop to many concerts, theatre and dance performances and exhibitions. Apart from Dubovac, there are also some other well-preserved old towns such as Bosiljevo, Ogulin Ribnik and Novigrad. The northernmost part of the Plitvice Lakes is also in Karlovac county, where the virgin forest of Čorkova Uvala is rich in ancient trees and protected animal species, including, in addition to bears, wolves and lynx.

Pag cheese, Pag lace and Pag salt top the list of world-famous trademarks from the island. But there is more... Divided between Lika-Senj and Zadar counties, the island is characterised by its dry-stone walls on the natural boundaries between pastures established by Pag farmers. There are about a thousand kilometres of these walls, mostly ruined, which makes Pag the place with the most in the country. Some other metrics garner a few more superlatives for the island: Pag's 270 kilometre-long coast is the longest of all the Adriatic islands, and is amongst the most heavily indented. There are many sandy and pebble beaches, including the hugely popular Zrće beach, which is the destination for visitors from all over the world looking for entertainment and dancing. Pag cheese is produced from the milk of an indigenous breed of sheep, and its unique qualities come from the island's medicinal plants, which are à la carte for the sheep there. This product represents the island of Pag and Croatia at the fairs in the European Union, and is labelled 'Izorno Hrvatsko' (Original Croatian product). Baškotin, a type of hard sweet toast, has the same label and it is prepared following a special monastic recipe. Once, along with sharing a coffee, it was an important part of the social rituals bonding people together on Pag. Pag lace was first mentioned in the 15th century, and nuns and the Pag schools maintain the tradition of lace-making today. Pag's salt pans are reputedly the oldest on the eastern Adriatic coast.

The north-western part of the island attracts many visitors, drawn to the beautiful natural beaches and to the biggest tourist centre on the island. But as well as the entertainments of Zrće beach, Novalja has excellent cuisine including Pag lamb. Visitors can choose from a range of day trips in the surrounding region, amongst them those to the nearby national parks on the mainland. In the same part of the island there is the so-called 'Pag triangle', which is an unusual imprint on the rocky ground discovered on the Tusto Čelo hill in May 1999. Many people (especially lovers of the supernatural) are trying to work out why the rocks inside the triangle are brighter than outside the triangle, and why they emit a red colour after exposure to ultraviolet light, which is normally indicative of being subjected to very high temperatures. You can also explore the underwater world of Pag's coast if you are interested.

DALMATIA – ZADAR

Dalmatia occupies the area from the Zrmanja River in the north to the Oštro promontory in the south, and it is divided into four administrative counties: Zadar, Šibenik-Knin, Split-Dalmatia and Dubrovnik-Neretva. In their capital cities, Zadar, Šibenik, Split and Dubrovnik, you will discover interesting and indelible traces of the distant past, which are not only of great historical significance for Croatia and the wider region, but are also of ongoing vital importance today in this part of Europe. They have been the inspiration for a number of cultural and artistic projects that are already widely acclaimed. The historic ambience perfectly complements the outstanding natural beauty, ranging from a thousand inhabited and uninhabited islands to numerous national parks, which all also showcase a unique gastronomic experience.

ZADAR REGION

This is the largest of Croatia's historical regions and is located in the northernmost part of Dalmatia, with Zadar as the main centre. Visitors choose the Zadar region for its picturesque coastline of over one thousand kilometres, encompassing the coastlines of three hundred islands and islets that belong to it. Among the larger and more famous islands are Pag, Dugi Otok, Ugljan and Pašman. This region also borders the Kornati islands and the national park of the same name. A large part of this 'paradise', by which it is referred to by regular visitors to the Zadar region, is located in the hinterland. Above all, the Paklenica National Park is to be found there, where Mother Nature carves out one of her great spectacles through the majestic canyons. More adventurous campers can try out canyoning here – travelling through the canyons using various modes of transport: walking, climbing and swimming. This kind of exploration will allow them to get up close to the phenomena that make this part of Croatia completely different from others. In the vicinity of this national park, there is a place called Modrić, with a cave of the same name, 840 metres long and full of beautiful stalagmites and stalactites. The Plitvice Lakes, Northern Velebit and the Krka National Parks are all also easily accessible from the Zadar region. This part of Croatia is also home to numerous nature parks: Telašćica on Dugi Otok ('Long Island'), Lake Vrana, the largest natural lake in Croatia, and the Velebit mountain range. If you are looking to spend at least a part of your holiday in solitude on some sandy or pebble beaches far from the main tourist destinations, you can, with the help of your host, go to one of the uninhabited islands to seek that real 'Robinson Crusoe' style of tourism. You will find some of the natural bounty on the menus too. Thus, for example, in the Zadar region, the tradition of using lavender flowers in cooking has been revived, mostly in desserts, so you can sample ice creams, mousses, biscuits or sorbet made with lavender. Zadar's Maraschino (maraskino), a liqueur that is well-known throughout the world and whose recipes are documented in the Dominican monastery in Zadar from as early as the 16th century, is made of bitter Dalmatian Marasca cherries, which grow at their best in the immediate vicinity of Zadar. Šokol, a cured dry-meat product made out of pork neck, and various specialities of fish, shellfish and seafood, seasoned with olive oil, will precede a lavender-scented dessert and a glass of the liqueur made of Zadar's cherries. The choices available are extensive and it's up to you to enjoy selecting from amongst them.

You can find additional information about Zadar county and individual destinations at www.zadar.hr.

Located between Rijeka and Split, and not far from Šibenik, Zadar is the second-largest city in Dalmatia. This former capital of Dalmatia, is the administrative, economic, cultural and political centre of Zadar county today, and is accessible by air from various European countries. Its beauty, diverse tourism opportunities, rich cultural and historical heritage, and recent original architectural innovations attract an ever-increasing number of tourists. You can start getting to know the place by walking along the Kalebarga (also known as the ‘Wide Street’), a main and a well-known Zadar street which some say is older than the city itself. The street runs east-west, from the People’s Square to the Forum, where you will find the church of St Donatus, the veritable trademark building of this city. This church, built in the 9th century, was named after the bishop who instigated its construction from the 15th century onwards. An international festival of medieval and Renaissance music has long been held in St Donatus. The bell-tower which dominates Zadar belongs to the Cathedral of St. Anastasia. Zadar locals believe that the sunsets from the Zadar waterfront are the most beautiful in the world, and that famous lover of Maraschino, Alfred Hitchcock, also remarked on them in a similar way. A tribute to those Zadar sunsets was made by the urban installation ‘Greeting to the Sun’, a light-play that begins with the sunset. This project, a model example for the use of renewable energy sources for the lighting of the waterfront, is the work of the architect Nikola Bašić, who is also the creator of the ‘Sea Organ’. The latter is constructed inside 70 metres of stone steps on Zadar’s coast, and with the help of the waves, is transformed into a real musical instrument. One of the symbols of Zadar is that of the barkajoli (boatmen), normal citizens who, in the Middle Ages, were given permission to transport people or cargo in their boats and were entitled to remuneration for doing so. Their tradition began in the 14th century, and since then it has passed from generation to generation, and it lives on today.

PAG TOWN

Where Zadar is associated with the Sun, the island of Pag is associated with the Moon. The bare karst and white stone surface has led to this island has being called the ‘lunar island’. But this is just the most obvious visible characteristic of the island’s surface, upon which there are many things to discover. So amongst the heritage of Pag town you will find the church of the Assumption. It is located on the main square and is the most valuable monument of sacral architecture in Pag, built by Šibenik and Zadar masters in the 15th century. The Rector’s Palace from the 15th century also sits on the main square. The former Kamerlengo Fortress Tower houses the town’s administrative offices, and the hugely important Benedictine Monastery of Pag plays an important role in the preservation of the tradition of lace-making. Also very distinctive of Pag are the various historical salt warehouse buildings. The Pag sundial is the most accurate device of its kind: It shows Central European Time calculated in line with the 15th meridian, which intersects the island of Pag. A type of mud that is used for successful treatment of rheumatic and various dermatological diseases can be found in the southwestern part of Pag town, in the area known as Lokunj. Hosts might recommend to active holiday enthusiasts, especially climbers, the route to Sveti Vid (Saint Vitus peak) which is the highest peak on the island at 348 metres. Pag’s bay is suitable for many water sports, especially for surfers who will be pleased with the wind there. Pag’s underwater world is well worth exploring too, as are the bike paths and trails.

STARIGRAD PAKLENICA

The Paklenica Riviera contains the town of Starigrad Paklenica at its centre, with Seline, Tribanj and Paklenica National Park also included. The Riviera is a part of the Velebit Nature Park, which, due to its particular relief, vegetation and landscapes, UNESCO included in the World Network of Biosphere Reserves. After just a few minutes’ walk from the coast you will find yourself inside the canyons of Velika (‘Great’) Paklenica and Mala (‘Small’) Paklenica, in one of the most beautiful parts of the Velebit massif. The Velebit mountain is the largest of Croatia’s mountains, and it is a famous European rock-climbing destination, as well as a very attractive excursion spot for hikers and climbers. It is also a traditional gathering place for scientists studying the richness of flora and fauna here. The rock-climbing area is at the very entrance to the Velika Paklenica canyon, where the cliffs reach up to 400 metres. The less adventurous can enjoy orchids and lilies in green meadows or the views over the dense pine forests. Paklenica has a very great deal of interest underground. The caves in Paklenica are among the deepest caves in Croatia, and feature as just a small part of the story of how locals used to obtain their water supply. From Starigrad, it is possible to visit the lower course of the river Zrmanja on an excursion. It flows into the sea at Novigrad, an ancient fishing village.

NIN

Renowned as the first political, religious and cultural centre of medieval Croatia, Nin has now mined its rich seams of history and assets for the purpose of promoting tourism. And, judging by the award-winning Zaton campsite (listed among the top thirty European campsites), the town has done it very successfully. In the once-royal city, 15 kilometres from Zadar, are the largest healing mud deposits in Croatia. They are located along the Kraljičina plaža (Queen’s beach), which got its name because it was a favourite beach of the wife of the first Croatian king, Tomislav. For many decades, Nin’s mud has been used for therapeutic purposes to treat a variety of diseases, and a legend goes that once even the queen herself tried it and trusted its efficiency. The same beach is also a gathering place for surfers and hang-gliders. You can also cycle and visit the donkey farm, where hosts organize sightseeing and horse riding. Here you can also taste donkey milk, which, in addition to being healthy and a good beauty treatment, is also believed to be an aphrodisiac. In July you can learn how to prepare the unique local delicacy šokol (made of pork meat) during the Nin šokolijada, which is a competition held for its preparation.

BIOGRAD NA MORU

Biograd na Moru is located 28 kilometres south of Zadar. Once the crown city of Croatian kings, today this port is a well-known tourist and nautical centre, located at the very centre of the Adriatic coast. Biograd is the centre of the riviera that consists of Sv. Petar na Moru, Turanj, Sv. Filip i Jakov, Biograd, Pakoštane and Drage, as well as several places on the island of Pašman. Many boaters visit on their way to the Kornati islands. Throughout the year many regattas and other nautical activities are organized here. Most of the campsites are located along the road leading from the city centre to the sandy bay at Soline and are located either right by the sea or only a very short distance from its sparkling azure waters.

BIOGRAD (Photo: I. Pervan)

PAKOŠTANE

Here, about halfway between Zadar and Šibenik, and near Lake Vrana, the largest natural freshwater lake in Croatia, you will find some of the best-equipped Croatian campsites. This part of northern Dalmatia is unique in the world due to its location in the middle of a triangle between three national parks of very different morphologies: Paklenica (mountains), Krka (river basin) and Kornati (archipelago). Ideal for tourists in the area, the Lake Vrana cycling route is circular in shape and has a length of 48 kilometres. A smaller part of the trail is on asphalt, and the larger part on a gravel track. At the Materine užance event, you can taste some of the traditional dishes of the region.

DRAGE

Drage is an ideal destination for those who want to take a well-earned break in tranquillity with family and friends, or in solitude away from all the mass-visited destinations. This tourist and fishing town has a very nice harbour and promenade where there are restaurants. The clear blue sea, indented coastline, ancient pine forests and beautiful beaches are some of the major draws of this small piece of Dalmatia. The easy access to Zadar and Šibenik is a further advantage of staying in Drage. Nearby is the Lake Vrana Nature Park. Along with the lower course of the river Neretva, these are the only major wetland areas in Mediterranean Croatia. Lake Vrana is well worth exploring, both for its fishing opportunities, and because it is the habitat of several endangered bird species, both on a European and global level.

DALMATIA – ŠIBENIK

NATIONAL PARK KORNATI (Photo: I. Pervan)

KRKA NATIONAL PARK (Photo: I. Pervan)

This part of Croatia is often called the heart of the Mediterranean. It includes Šibenik-Knin county, along with its two national parks – one maritime, the other ashore – 11 medieval fortresses, 230 cultural monuments and 600 archaeological sites. Šibenik is the main town, and, along with its Cathedral of St. Jacob, stands as testimony to the historical importance of this part of Europe. The Cathedral is unique on a global scale for many reasons and included in UNESCO's list of World Heritage Sites.

The magnificent Kornati islands give their name to the national park containing 89 uninhabited islands, which are part of the Šibenik archipelago. Even if you only gaze at them from the campsites located on neighbouring islands or along the coast of this region, you will realise that they are a real gem, which also captivated George Bernard Shaw, the famous writer. It was he who wrote that 'On the last day of Creation God desired to crown His work, and thus created the Kornati Islands out of tears, stars and breath.' The closest place to these islands is the island of Murter, which is the largest and most densely populated island of Šibenik-Knin county, and is connected to the mainland by a moveable bridge. Together with the Kornati archipelago, it forms the largest island municipality in the Mediterranean. In the inland part of the region is the Krka National Park, where the karstic river of the same name is one of the most beautiful in Croatia. The river and its surroundings are home to distinctive flora and fauna, some of which live in the numerous caves. Along its journey of 75 kilometres through the picturesque, deep canyon, the river Krka forms very beautiful waterfalls: Bilušića Buk, Miljacka, Brljan, Rošnjak, Manojlovački Slap, Roški Slap and Skradinski Buk. On a boat trip in the park, you can also visit Visovac, a small island where a Franciscan Monastery is located. You can also visit Skradin Buk via the waterways from Skradin, a small town famous for its marina and visited by celebrities. Perhaps it was precisely this natural beauty that inspired the inventor of the parachute, Faust Vrančić. He was the Croatian Leonardo da Vinci, and earned his international reputation at the end of the 16th century when he published the description of his invention. Born in Šibenik, Vrančić spent his childhood on the island of Prvić, where there is a museum collection connected with him.

On the island of Prvić you can find out why the Italian naturalist and travel writer, Alberto Fortis, lavished such praise upon the local figs, wine, olive oil, fruits and other products produced here and on the neighbouring islands. In his book 'The journey through Dalmatia', Šibenik and its surrounding areas were treated to a huge number of pages, and so perhaps that's reason enough for you to come here and stay in one of the campsites of the Šibenik region.

You can find additional information about Šibenik-Knin county and individual destinations at www.sibenikregion.com.

The Cathedral of St. James is without doubt the most important building in the largest city of the Šibenik-Knin county. It took 105 years to complete the building, and much of the work was carried out under the watchful eye of the famous Dalmatian architect, Juraj the Dalmatian. He contributed to this unique monument of sacral architecture, built in the Gothic and Renaissance styles with more than seventy sculpted heads carved on the exterior of the cathedral. It is the most significant architectural achievement of the 15th and 16th centuries in Croatia, and has been listed on UNESCO's list of World Heritage Sites since 2000. It is the only cathedral in Europe built entirely of stone without any mortar binding or wooden structural elements. Šibenik has its own theatre which has operated in its magnificent building since 1870, and today it is the second oldest theatre in Croatia. St Michael's Fortress dates back to the original settlement of Šibenik, and it is an important feature on any cultural itinerary for tourists in the Šibenik region. It was built 60 metres above sea level, and possesses a fine summer stage with over a thousand seats. You can learn about the medicinal and culinary herbs of the Mediterranean at the Medieval Mediterranean Garden inside the Franciscan monastery of St Lawrence, in association with the Šibenik Private High School. Admire the wild thyme and the beautiful hues of its leaves, in red, purple, grey, pale and dark green, and also discover how capers first arrived in the region. Have you ever wondered how the falcon is such a skilled hunter? Discover exactly how, and uncover other mysteries about the life of this predator in the Falconry centre, located in Šibenik's Dubrava, a pine forest only 8 kilometres from the city centre. Šibenik is well-known for its International Children's Festival, which for decades has been held there from late June to early July. Established more recently, the Terraneo music festival brings in the big names of the world music scene. There is one more big event with an international character: The Medieval Fair is held in late September for the feast of St Michael, the patron saint of the city. It revives the atmosphere of the glorious past of Šibenik. Among the towns in the surrounding area, Drniš deserves a special mention: It is 20 minutes drive away into the heart of the Dalmatian hinterland. There, among other things, they process and dry the well-known and award-winning Drniš prosciutto ham. And 55 kilometres away from Šibenik is the town of Knin, located on the border between Lika, Bosnia and Dalmatia.

ISLAND OF MURTER (Photo: I. Pervan)

MURTER – BETINA

The island of Murter is only thirty kilometres from the city of Šibenik and is the closest island. At its closest point, only 38 meters separate Murter and mainland Šibenik, and it is connected to the mainland via a moveable bridge in the town of Tisno. This proximity to the mainland, and also to the Kornati islands, makes it very attractive to boaters and to those looking for a peaceful holiday. A key jumping-off point for visits to the Kornati islands is the largest settlement on this island, which bears the same name, Murter. Having its own large marina, it is a favourite nautical destination. The inhabitants of Murter and Betina actually own a good part of the Kornati archipelago, including the 89 uninhabited islands within the Kornati National Park itself. Perhaps this is why they turned to tourism. Here, on the Murter Sea, you will find campsites in some of the most beautiful bays on the Mediterranean, where you can enjoy the shade and the scent of olive trees. The Murter Sea is the largest sea area between the Šibenik and Zadar archipelagos. Its area is 210 square kilometres with a maximum depth of 94 metres. The town of Murter also became renowned for its carnival traditions, so much so that the carnival (with its own inevitable interpretations of contemporary events) has been included in the calendar of the most important events in the whole Šibenik region. Betina is considered by many to be one of the most beautiful tourist destinations on the Adriatic. In the 18th century, shipbuilding began to develop there. In the 19th century a shipyard for the construction of large timber ships was founded, and today, the shipyard 'Betina' continues with the tradition. It is especially famous for the construction and repair of sports and fishing boats for domestic and foreign markets. A traditional festival takes place in Betina on the first Sunday in August, where you can taste special types of shellfish from the area that are hunted with brganja fishing tools.

JEZERA

Located on the southeast side of the island of Murter, and 3 kilometres from the bridge at the village of Tisno, this, the smallest of places on Murter, is named after the small lakes that form in the valleys after spring and autumn rains and which disappear with the arrival of the sun. Jezera has been inhabited since the 13th century, and its residents were then already well-known as skilful sailors. Mount Mortar is to be found here, after which the island was named. On the small area of arable land grapes, olives and figs are cultivated, which can be enjoyed by tourists as well. From here you can organise excursions to the Kornati islands, and also to other national parks in the Šibenik and Zadar regions.

PRIMOŠTEN

If you want to sample the dry red wine Babić, that has earned many fans amongst the world's wine lovers, then visit Primošten, a tourist town 28 kilometres south of Šibenik. Once upon a time it was an island, and the town was first mentioned under its present name in 1564. With the passing of time it was connected to the mainland via the construction of an isthmus. Primošten's centuries-old vineyards, from where this famous wine originates, can also be admired by visitors to the United Nations building in New York, where their pictures have been displayed as an icon of hard labour throughout the centuries. You can hear the story of life in this picturesque part of the Šibenik region at the Primoštenski užanci festival, one of the long-established traditions of the area. This event takes place during the first two weeks of August, and with a glass of fine wine and some home-cooked fish you can witness the staging of a traditional Primošten wedding, and also have fun at the donkey races.

PIROVAC

This is one of the most important destinations on the Šibenik Riviera and is only 23 kilometres away from Šibenik. Here you will find healing mud, as well as kilometres of well-landscaped walking and bike trails along the beautiful beaches, attractive bays and cultural-historical monuments. These are only some of the features that make this place an ideal choice for a holiday. The easy access to the divine Kornati islands and Krka waterfalls, and Lake Vrana, only five kilometres away, with its great fishing opportunities, makes the choice of a campsite at Pirovac even more attractive. You can combine natural beauty and Dalmatian specialities by choosing to have a picnic in an olive grove, an offer that your hosts will be more than happy to arrange for you.

VODICE

Located almost in the centre of Šibenik-Knin county, Vodice is one of the top ten biggest tourist destinations on the Adriatic. In this town, famous for its liveliness and its rich and diverse tourist infrastructure, there's something for everybody. Here, in a wide bay 11 kilometres northwest of Šibenik, health and 'congress' tourism are well-developed. There are also campsites where you can learn about the splendours of the area's traditional cuisine and also enjoy a wide range of sporting activities. The closest island is the island of Prvić, where relaxation is especially guaranteed due to the lack of traffic, and where you can reward your palate with, for example, Prvić's salad of octopus with olive oil, which is labelled 'Hrvatski otočni proizvod' ('Croatian Island Product').

DALMATIA- SPLIT

SPLIT (Photo: I. Čorić)

If you want to cram as many UNESCO World Heritage Sites as possible into your trip, your wish will be granted in central Dalmatia, in the county of Split-Dalmatia. In fact in this leading tourist region of Croatia, within around thirty kilometres of each other are Diocletian's Palace in Split itself, the largest city in Central Dalmatia, Stari Grad Plain on the island of Hvar and Trogir's town centre, all sitting waiting for your visit.

And that is not the full extent of what the United Nations Organization for Education, Science and Culture has included on its prestigious lists. UNESCO has also put the following 'intangible cultural heritage' under its protection from this part of Croatia: Hvar's agave- and aloe-lace-making and its procession Za križen (following the cross), and the Sinj Alka (a traditional knightly tournament originating in Sinj in the 18th century). The list also includes Nijemo kolo (a silent circle dance) from Vrlika and Klapa singing, which is a traditional style of unaccompanied polyphonic singing, recently spread to other Croatian regions from its cradle in Dalmatia.

There are numerous archaeological sites, including the well-known Solin. Solin is the biggest such site on the eastern Adriatic coast, and it is proof that there could have once been even more of these great historic monuments. It comprises the remains of the ancient town of Salona, the former capital of the Roman province of Dalmatia, and it is located about six kilometres north of Split. Away from the coast, sustainable tourism and a return to nature have been promoted by ever more popular eco-ethno villages, whereas on the coast, campsites have been promoting the same philosophy by using the plentiful sunlight to generate energy for heating, amongst other things.

Campsites in Central Dalmatia are involved with and promote culinary specialities of this part of Croatia. Given the inevitable local fish and seafood, it would be worth tasting delicacies with recipes dating back to the time of Marko Marulić, the father of Croatian literature, who was born in Split. For example, gingerbread flavoured with lots of saffron. This spice, along with honey and coriander, was an exceptionally important product of the islands in the 16th century.

Away from the sea, into the Dalmatian hinterland, Cetina trout is an indigenous dish, as is frog brujet (stew) on baškotin (crispy bread-roll): frogs' legs are bathed in lemon juice and then cooked with other ingredients over a low heat and served with toasted bread.

A rarer drink to find is the 'cocktail' of young wine and goat's milk, which is known by various names in this region: bikla is its name in Vrgorac, the home-town of Tin Ujević, the well-known Croatian poet. Today, Vrgorac also produces a quality wine and the best strawberries in Dalmatia.

You can find additional information about Split-Dalmatia county and individual destinations on www.dalmatia.hr.

This is the second largest city in Croatia, and an urban and cultural centre at the crossroads of Dalmatia. It straddles a peninsula at the foot of the Marjan hill, with the Kozjak and Mosor mountains ascending behind the city and waterfront. This increasingly popular tourist destination had its ‘official’ beginning in the year 300AD. In that year the Emperor Diocletian began the construction of his palace here, which combined the elements of an imperial villa, a Hellenistic city and a Roman military fort.

However, there are archaeological findings attesting to a more ancient history of Split. The historical centre was inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage list in 1979, and the number of annual tourists is steadily increasing. In the former home of Diocletian, you cannot miss the well-known Peristyle, nor the Cathedral of St Duje with its wooden doors fashioned by Andrija Buvina. For culture-lovers, Split offers a theatrical and exhibition programme, including the international festival of opera, concerts, drama, dance and street theatre.

Due to various sporting events that are organized here, as well as the fact that Split has produced many top athletes, Spalatians call their city the sportiest city in the world. The city is connected with smaller islands in the Split archipelago by ferry. The archipelago includes Šolta, whose name is believed to come from the Greek word olynthia, which means ‘unripe fig’. Split is connected to the island of Vis, whose ‘Green cave’ can be visited in conjunction with the famous ‘Blue Cave’ on the nearby Biševo island.

TROGIR

Once one of the largest cultural centres of Dalmatia, since 1997 Trogir has been on the UNESCO World Heritage Site list as the best-preserved Romanesque-Gothic town in Central Europe. Chief amongst Trogir’s jewels are the achievements of Radovan the Sculptor, whose grand portal of the Cathedral of St Lawrence from the 13th century. Among the town’s sights, are the Kamerlengo Tower Fortress, the City Gate, the Čipiko palace, the City Hall, as well as the church of St Nicholas with its collection of art-works in honour of the god Kairos, who will hopefully bless you with many happy moments in Trogir. Also certain to bless you with happy gastronomic moments are Trogir’s restaurants. The culinary options includes Trogir paštica and, for dessert, Trogir rafijol. Paštica is a beef stew with wine, prošek (a local dessert wine made from raisins), vinegar, spices and vegetables. It is virtually an object of devotion in all of Dalmatia, and each part of the region has its own different variation of it. The rich cultural heritage of Trogir is complemented by Čiovo island’s heritage. Čiovo and Trogir are connected by a moveable bridge. In order to help protect their estates as the Ottomans advanced, there is a citadel here that Trogir’s bishop ordered to be built in the 16th century. In the vicinity of Trogir, you can visit several more beautiful churches in Vinišće.

MAKARSKA RIVIJERA

The scenery of the Makarska Riviera is characterised by long, pine-shaded beaches, and Biokovo, the highest of Croatia’s coastal mountains. This part of the central Dalmatian coast stretches for about 60 kilometres. Apart from its largest tourist destination, Makarska, after which the riviera is named, the area encompasses a number of smaller towns which used to subsist almost entirely on fishing income. You will enjoy the authentic Mediterranean environment of the campsites stretching from Brela and Baška Voda over Tučepi, Podgora, Živogošće as far as Drvenik and Zaoštrog. Biokovo is sitting waiting to fill your lungs with the fresh mountain air, which you will enjoy if you decide to strike out on one of the nature park’s well laid-out educational trails. Among many beautiful beaches, Punta rata in Brela stands out. According to the American magazine, Forbes, it is one of the ten most beautiful beaches in the world. Along with its two kilometre-long beach and promenade, Makarska town is also home to a sea-shell museum, where you can see an interesting and unique collection of shells from the Adriatic and other seas of the world. It is considered one of the most beautiful and richest malacological museums in the world.

Athletes and recreation enthusiasts can choose from among various sporting activities on land and sea. Health tourism has also been developed in the region, and the Biokovka health resort offers various therapeutic services. Amongst local foodstuffs is the celebrated Makarska rafioli, which is a dessert made from shortcrust pastry, believed to have an aphrodisiac effect. ‘Makarana cake’, which the Croatian Ministry of Culture has included on its list of protected intangible cultural heritage, is also famous among the traditional delicacies of the region. The recipes for these sweets confirm that, in this part of Croatia, maraschino liqueur is most used for cakes, but when it comes to drinking prošek, locals prefer that neat.

HVAR

This island is an island of excellence in many ways. And it’s an excellence that transcends borders, as Hvar is reckoned among the top ten most beautiful islands on the Earth. Plenty of sunshine (indeed, the largest amount of annual sunshine) is just a small feature of its attractive mosaic. You will get a more complete picture of the island and its value if you visit its largest town. In Hvar town is the largest square in Dalmatia along with the Cathedral of St Stephen. The square is named after the same saint as the cathedral, though the people of Hvar call it ‘Pjaca’. The theatre in Hvar was one of the first municipal theatres built in Europe. It was founded in 1612 and is located in the Arsenal building. The Benedictine Monastery in Hvar is important because its nuns are the last continuing to make lace with the threads obtained from the centres of fresh aloe leaves. The lace, originally from Tenerife, has been present here since the mid-19th century and it is now protected by inclusion on UNESCO’s list of Intangible World Heritage. Another intangible cultural property from here that is on the same list is the procession Za križen, a ritual that involves six towns on the island: Jelsa, Pitve, Vrisnik, Svirče, Vrbanj, and Vrboska. During the night between Maundy Thursday and Good Friday, the cross bearer is accompanied by believers and pilgrims, and makes the eight-hour journey of over 25 kilometres with a cross weighing 18 kilograms. In 2008, the World Heritage List accepted the inclusion of the Stari Grad Plain based on several criteria, among them as being an example of a very old traditional landscape and as an agricultural region that has continued cultivating the same crops for thousands of years. You can taste the fruits of this area in such local specialties as lavender-flavoured desserts and highly-esteemed wines. One of the oldest delicacies is starogrojski paprenjok, a delicacy mentioned in Peter Hektorović’s main work ‘Fishing and Fishermen’s Talk’. The Renaissance home of this writer, Tvrđalj Castle, is the most famous monument in Stari Grad itself.

ISLAND OF BRAČ - BOL (Photo: I. Pervan)

This is the largest Dalmatian island and the third largest island in the Adriatic. With Vidova gora peak reaching 778 metres above sea level, Brač is also the highest of the islands. If you were to look at the island from a birds-eye view, or as photographed in any guide book, you would recognise Brač by its trademark – the pebble beach Zlatni Rat in Bol. This is one of the most beautiful beaches in the world and the largest coastal attraction on the whole Adriatic. Bol is the island’s oldest coastal settlement and a well-known seaside resort. It is located on the south side of the island, where there are several well-managed campsites, allowing all campers to discover why this particular place has won so many tourist accolades and plaudits. In addition to the flourishing tourism of Bol and Zlatni rat, there are also favourable winds for lovers of windsurfing. In the distant past, Brač stone was more famous than Bol’s golden pebbles. This stone is embedded not only in stone houses on the island, but also in the White House in Washington and Diocletian’s Palace in Split. The quarries from which this building material was excavated are located in the vicinity of Pučišća on the northern part of the island. New generations of stone-masons are educated in the Stone-masons’ school in Pučišća. The northern coast of the island is well-known for Lovrenčina bay, and the area between Postira and Pučišća with another large sandy beach. There are also some valuable archaeological sites. Amongst other specific tourist attractions on the island, the Dragon Cave, near the towns of Bol and Murvica, stands out. This cave was used as a home and as place of worship by Glagolitic priests in the 15th century, who decorated it with mystical sculptures. Braš is well-known for its plavac wine, cheese, and lamb specialties.

OMIŠ

Twenty-one kilometres south of Split, at the mouth of the Cetina River and the foot of steep cliffs of the Omiš Dinara, lies Omiš, a town well-known for its rich history of piracy. During the pirate nights that are organised here, you can hear about the adventures and history of Omiš pirates, who were, to put it mildly, not all that popular on the Adriatic. If you climb the steps to the fortress Mirabela via the historic centre of Omiš, you will find many Pirate souvenirs. That fortress dates from the 13th century. Another castle ‘Fortica’ is somewhat younger, from the 15th century, and is located at the very top of Omiš Dinara, the towering cliffs behind the town. For adventurers, this city is a perfect choice: rafting, hiking, rock climbing and caving are among its major attractions. For decades, the Omiš Festival of Dalmatian Songs has kept an a capella singing tradition alive and well. The Omiš City museum houses the ‘Poljice statute’, one of the oldest and most significant historic documents in Croatia, being the main written legislation of the ancient Poljice Republic. Poljica, the administrative centre of the region, also produces the famous soparnik, a spinach pie.

DALMATIA- DUBROVNIK

It is largely thanks to Dubrovnik that Croatia owes its popularity and attraction that it now has in the tourism world. Dubrovnik is the seat of Dubrovnik-Neretva county and the centre of tourism in South Dalmatia. It has built its tourist industry around its valuable cultural and historical sites under UNESCO protection. They are part and parcel with the natural beauty and richness of the entire region which stretches from the Neretva River in the north to the border with Montenegro its southernmost point.

In this area of inimitable sensual experiences around every corner, you can feel the spirit of the famous Dubrovnik Republic, whose inhabitants were skilled in diplomacy, trade and shipping. Thanks to the old Dubrovnik seafarers, you can find plants from tropical and subtropical regions here today, which characterise the lush vegetation of area and enrich the environment of some southern Dalmatian campsites. These plants thrive due to the exceptionally mild climate. Perhaps the Trsteno Arboretum is the best witness to this. It is located about 15 kilometres from Dubrovnik and is the only arboretum on the Croatian Adriatic coast, being a unique combination of cultural and natural heritage. Its fame rests on its historical gardens and its collection of both Mediterranean and exotic plants. The Arboretum was founded in 1948 in the grounds of a historic manor house which the aristocratic family Gučetić-Gozze built here in the 15th century, and it is protected as a monument of landscaped architecture. Within its 25 acres are historical Renaissance gardens with a summer house, a historical neo-Romantic park from the turn of the 19th and 20th centuries, a historical olive grove, examples of natural vegetation of hrast medunac (native oak woodland), alepski bor (Aleppo pine), cypress, maquis vegetation and coastal cliffs. Numerous plantations of lemons, oranges and various palms and agaves provide the broader South Dalmatia region with a definite identity and a special charm. The Mljet National Park is also in the region, on the island of the same name, which, together with Korčula, Lastovo and Elaphiti, makes up the shortlist of the most important islands in this corner of the Adriatic. Southern Dalmatia also boasts of the Pelješac peninsula, which is the largest peninsula in Croatia after Istria. For natural wealth and diversity, the far south of Croatia does not scrimp in the gastronomy department either. Arancini (candied orange peel) is a traditional delicacy prepared from local oranges which grow in the Dubrovnik gardens without the use of harmful chemicals, and you can take some home as a souvenir. Dubrovačka rozata ("Dubrovnik flan") is also a native delicacy, which was already sweetening palates in medieval times. It is a cream made of eggs, flour and milk, served cold and topped with caramel syrup. It was named after Dubrovnik liquor made from roses, well-known as rozulin, which is used for flavouring this tasty dessert. In recent years it has come to be replaced by rum.

You can find additional information about Dubrovnik-Neretva county and individual destinations at www.visitdubrovnik.hr.

DUBROVNIK

One of the most-visited cities on the Adriatic, with monumental city-walls 1,940 metres long and 25 metres high, located at the foot of Srđ Mountain, Dubrovnik was inscribed on the list of UNESCO's World Heritage Sites in 1979. Dubrovnik is famous for its Stradun, the principal and oldest street in the town. Here, where historical personalities once walked, today now walk royalty, famous actors, singers, athletes and many others. Why not join them? The Minčeta fortified tower is older than this street and is one of the most enduring symbols of the city and its freedom, as well as one of the world's most beautiful fortifications. Likewise, there is the Bokar Fort, which once defended the main gate of the city. Today it is one of the venues for the Dubrovnik Summer Festival. At this event, the 'Orlando' award is given out. This award is named after yet another symbol of the city: the stone pillar carved with a medieval warrior with sword and shield. This monument was erected to the legendary hero Orlando (Roland) by Dubrovnik citizens in grateful memory of his contribution towards the defence of the city against Arab pirates. Every year, the opening ceremony of the Dubrovnik Summer Festival takes place in front of the Orlando statue and it includes the raising of the 'Libertas' flag, which is styled after that of the historical Dubrovnik Republic. All these symbols stand as monuments to the love of freedom enjoyed by Dubrovnik, and which also found expression in the poetry of the baroque poet Ivan Gundulić. Opposite Orlando is the Sponza Palace, which was once a very lively trading place and the cultural centre of the Republic. Dating from the period of the Dubrovnik Republic, the Franciscan monastery still maintains its pharmacy in operation. It was founded in 1317, the same year as the monastery, which makes it one of the oldest pharmacies in Europe. In the Dominican Monastery, go and see the works of the painters of the Dubrovnik school from the 15th and 16th centuries along with works by the great Titian, and in the Cathedral, see the silver and golden reliquaries fashioned by Dubrovnik master-goldsmiths from the 11th to the 19th centuries. Stop at the Great Onofrio Fountain, visit the Rector's Palace, and do not miss the walk along the tops of the city walls. In the Maritime Museum get to know the centuries-old maritime traditions of the Dubrovnik Republic and find out more information about some famous sailors, the mathematician Getaldić and the physicist Ruder Bošković. Climb up the Lovijenac Fort, which doubles up as one of the most beautiful stage-sets for the play 'Hamlet' by William Shakespeare. You might also try climbing up Srđ Mount, which, although somewhat physically challenging, will enable you to enjoy sweeping views over beautiful Dubrovnik and its gorgeous surroundings.

THE DUBROVNIK RIVIJERA

Opposite the city of Dubrovnik, virtually an inseparable part of the old town, floats the island of Lokrum, a special reserve of woody plants under UNESCO's protection. Here you can admire plant species which mainly originate from Australia and South America, with interesting collections of eucalyptus, cacti and succulents. Lokrum is also well-known as the island of love. Koločep, an outcrop of limestone and dolomite, is the smallest of the inhabited Elaphiti islands. Šipan is the largest island in this group. Lopud, the second largest, is well-known for its sandy beach at Šunj. On the coast of the Dubrovnik Riviera along with Trsteno and the famous arboretum, Orašac and Zaton are found along with other smaller resorts. Mlini (named after the local water-mills) is well-known as the 'oasis' of the Dubrovnik Riviera, only 10 kilometres away from Dubrovnik. South of the grand town of Dubrovnik is Cavtat, another popular tourist destination in this part of Croatia. It is the largest single urban area in Konavle, the southernmost region of Croatia, and was built according to a city plan. In Cavtat old town, you can visit the birth house of Vlaho Bukovac, one of the most famous Croatian painters and a progenitor of the Croatian modern school of painting. To get a better knowledge of the history of this region, diving and exploring Cavtat's underwater world could help too. Under the Cavtat waves there are several ancient sites, which are among the largest and the most attractive in the Mediterranean, with 1,800 amphorae and pithos from the 1st century BC to the 2nd century AD to explore. As well as its unspoiled natural landscape, unique rural architecture of high value, costumes and embroidery, the Konavle region is well-known for its production of the wine of Dubrovnik, Malvasia, which can be an excellent dessert wine. Other varieties are also grown and produced here. Molunat is a fishing and tourist resort at the far southernmost tip of the Croatian coast, approximately 20 kilometres southeast of Cavtat and the airport in Čilipi. It is also well connected with this area. At the very north of the riviera is Klek, surrounded with centuries-old olive trees and oleanders. It is an ideal destination for socialising with friends and family in a quieter environment, and there is also a large pebble beach which stretches along the waterfront the whole length of the village. From Klek, you could row over to Mali Ston in a wooden boat, or head to the Neretva delta or the Pelješac peninsula.

If your idea of the perfect holiday is first-class wine and shellfish combined with staying in a campsite along pebbly or sandy beaches, then you will not be disappointed on the Pelješac peninsula. This peninsula is the most well-known vineyard area of southern Croatia, and the wine from the Pelješac wine-cellar complements Mali Ston oysters perfectly. These delicacies from Mali Ston are reputed to possess aphrodisiac qualities. They were sought-after even in Renaissance times, when they were an indispensable part of the feasts of Dubrovnik's nobility. When it comes to the wines, dingač, postup and plavac mali are all native Pelješac varieties. The best way to get to know them would be to follow one of the many Pelješac wine-routes. Some larger places on the Pelješac peninsula are Orebić, Trpanj, Ston and Kućište, where the population occupies itself with farming oysters and mussels, fishing and tourism, as well as wine-growing.

OREBIĆ

The biggest town on the Pelješac peninsula and home to numerous sailors and captains. You can discover the history of Orebić seafaring at the Maritime Museum which can be visited after your stay in the camps located in pristine nature, surrounded by lush vegetation which includes hundred-year-old pines, cypresses, olive trees, almonds, agaves and different types of flowers. Orebić also offers its guests long pebble beaches, the most famous of which is the Trstenica. There are also numerous coves with crystal clear waters. The hill of Sveti Ilija is with its altitude of 910 metres the highest part of Orebić. Here you can see a herd of mouflons and visit the archaeological site of Gornji Nakovanj, where traces of prehistoric man have been found. Above Orebić there is a plateau with a Franciscan monastery and the church of Our Lady of Angels. From here you have a wonderful view of Mljet and Korčula, and the coastline of Pelješac. For lovers of nature and excursions there are organised trips, walking tours, wine routes and visits to wine cellars. Kućište, which is 6 kilometres away, offers campers shady pebble beaches, sailing and surfing. There is also a restaurant with local specialities and famous Pelješac wines.

KORČULA – MLJET

Korčula is the sixth-largest island in the Adriatic Sea. The Pelješac channel separates it from the Pelješac peninsula and the shortest distance between them both is 1,270 metres. The well-indented coast and a mild climate have been favourable to the development of tourism, which has a long tradition. Amongst other things, the island is interesting for its streets in fish-bone patterns. The largest settlement is Korčula town itself, which is believed to be the birthplace of Marco Polo. A great attraction for tourists, Korčula is proud of its traditional knights' sword-dance, the so-called moreška. The Cathedral of Saint Mark is the most beautiful Gothic-Renaissance monument in the old town of Korčula. It is also a treasure-trove with valuable works by local and foreign masters. Among some notable villages is Lumbarda which is well-known for its sandy beaches, and Vela Luka, an attractive tourist destination. From the latter you can reach the island of Lastovo and the Lastovo Archipelago Nature Park.

Not far from the island of Korčula is the island of Mljet, the greenest island in the Adriatic, a third of which is contained within the perimeter of the Mljet National Park. It was declared a national park due to its outstanding natural beauty and rich flora and fauna. In addition to these are numerous beaches, fish and lobster fishing grounds and numerous cultural and historical monuments, which make it an extremely attractive tourist destination. The Mljet National Park is the oldest marine park in the whole of the Mediterranean, and possesses two salt-water lakes: the Great and the Little Lake, with a Benedictine monastery on the island of Santa Maria. In the tranquillity of this densely wooded island, you will find a Roman palace, only lagging behind Diocletian's Palace in Split and the Arena in Pula in terms of size. Adventure on to discover Jama (the cave), which is also frequently known as the 'Odysseus cave'. The legend has it that it was this very cave where Odysseus took refuge for seven years after being shipwrecked, nursing his homesickness and longing for Penelope. There is yet more... but discover the rest on your own!

You will discover continental Croatia best by travelling through Zagreb, Central Croatia and Slavonia. Magical hills, vineyards and castles stretch from the northwestern part of the country to the capital, Zagreb, whose popularity with world travellers continues to grow. In the easternmost part lies Slavonia, known for its top wines.

Central Croatia is bounded by the rivers Sava, Drava and Mura. An idyllic, hilly landscape strewn with vineyards is the familiar picture of the Croatian Zagorje region. Central both within the greater region of Central Croatia and Krapina-Zagorje county is the town of Krapina, in whose museum about the Krapina Neanderthals you can discover the life and culture of the Neanderthals whose remains were found here in the 19th century. This part of Croatia is known for its thermal spas, one of which is located in Tuhelj. The famous Tuhelj spa resort offers waters which are useful in treating various ailments. There is also a campsite there. While in Central Croatia, do not miss a visit to the Baroque town of Varaždin. Its cemetery with its garden architecture is a nature park of the highest grade. In late August the Baroque capital of Croatia, as it is often called, becomes the Croatian capital of culture and entertainment with the widely known Špancirfest, a festival celebrating the town, and with many street acts. The charming castle of Trakošćan can also be found in Varaždin county, where you can learn all about the long history of this magnificent 13th century building. The castle is surrounded by a picturesque park with exotic trees. Other places to see in this county include Lepoglava, known for its lace, and Ludbreg, made famous by a legend which claims that this town is the centre of the Earth. You will get to know the beauty of the Mura and Drava rivers best of all in Čakovec, the capital of Međimurje county; and you can get to know a little about the Celts in this area of Croatia if you visit Sisak, the capital of Sisak-Moslavina county, located at the confluence of the Kupa and Sava rivers. In the vicinity are the Lonjsko Polje Nature Park and Čigoć, a 'museum-village' of wooden architecture and home to storks. West of Sisak is the county of Zagreb. Among the larger towns here is Samobor, within the Žumberak-Samobor Highlands Nature Park, which offers visitors its long carnival tradition and its kremšnita: a custard, cream and puff-pastry cake. There is also the town of Sveta Nedelja, where, in the nearby village of Kerestinec, is a castle from the Erdödy dynasty. The true heart of Croatia is Zagreb, which is becoming an increasingly important tourist destination. The foundations of the city were built over centuries, with first mention of the city in the 11th century. The city was first known as a unified whole from the 19th century, upon the connection of Gradec and Kaptol, two settlements located on neighbouring hilltops.

With this union two previously-conflicting peoples were merged: in Gradec, citizens, artisans and merchants; and on Kaptol, priests. The street of Krvavi most ('bloody bridge') tells of these relations, located where the bridge over the Medveščak stream once linked (or, in this case, separated) the Kaptol of the bishops and the royal city of Gradec, and where numerous residents spilled blood in conflict with their neighbours, although the exact number of deaths over the years remains unknown is area inspired the Croatian writer Marija Jurić Zagorka to begin her famous series 'The Witch from Grič' with the historical novel 'The Secret of the Bloody Bridge'. Today, the oldest parts of Zagreb, Gradec and Kaptol, are among the most beautiful and best preserved secessionist city cores in Europe. They are linked by the legend of their underground tunnels, some of which lead to Medvedgrad, a fort located on the southern slopes of Medvednica. Before you head to this mountain north of Zagreb, visit Kamenita vrata ('the Stone gate'), on Grič, another name for Gradec. This formed a part of the defensive fortifications of the historic village, and in its passage is the Chapel of Our Lady of the Stone Gate, the patron saint of the city. In today's Upper Town the Church of Saint Mark can also be found. It is one of the oldest buildings in Zagreb and is located in Saint Mark's Square, which is also the political centre of Croatia. In the square are Banski dvori, the seat of the government and building of the Croatian government.

Every day on the dot at noon, a cannon is fired from the Lotrščak tower on Grič to mark the middle of the day. The Klovičevi Dvori Gallery is one of the most significant destinations in Zagreb and Croatia for those who love culture. Located in the Jesuit monastery of the Upper Town, the Gallery is home to some of the greatest artworks in the world, along with Croatian artworks from various periods and contemporary art. There is also the Museum of Broken Relationship, in which memories of wrecked love are exhibited. The Upper and Lower towns are physically connected today, notably by the popular funicular, which is the shortest funicular in the world used for public transport. In a minute or less, you can descend into the Lower Town, then along Ilica, the longest street in Zagreb, reach the central square in Zagreb, Ban Jelačić. Onwards from there you can also reach what for some is the most recognisable part of Zagreb, the Neo-Gothic Zagreb Cathedral on Kaptol square.

To reach the eight parks of the so-called Lenuzzi horseshoe, you can stroll across the Dolac market, where you can try domestic homegrown foods.

The Medvednica Mount feels rather like a city park, due to its location near Zagreb and due to its landscaped trails, historical monuments and recreational facilities. It is a favourite resort for locals, whose love of time spent outdoors also draws them Zagreb's Jarun Lake, or to its famous beach and promenade situated along the Sava river, or to the Maksimir Park. Due to its neo-Renaissance arcades, tombs of prominent figures from Croatian political and cultural life, and a large number of gravestones that are the work of famous sculptors, the Mirogoj cemetery is also well-known as a tourist destination. On your trip around the region, do visit Slavonia, which, together with Baranja, forms the easternmost part of Croatia. The area is sometimes known as the 'Breadbasket of Croatia' and indeed it is one of the most fertile regions in Europe. A number of well-known Croatian attractions are located here, including the Kopački rit Nature Park. As well as being declared a nature park in 1976, Kopački rit was also added to a list of important ornithological areas. It is considered to be one of the most unspoiled fluvial-wetland plains in Europe. As for the biodiversity of the Park, it suffices to say that the list of plants known to grow here is still expanding. The park is only 13km from Osijek, the fourth largest city in Croatia and capital of Osijek-Baranja county. The landscape around Osijek is filled with vineyards, which produce some of the best Croatian wines. You can taste them in the region's cellars, which they say are some of the oldest in Europe.

MINI CAMPSITES

CROATIA

MINI CAMPSITES... SMALL AND FAMILY-RUN CAMPSITES

You will get to know the customs of certain parts of Croatia better in the intimate atmosphere of smaller, so-called 'mini campsites' each providing up to about 30 accommodation units, making up a maximum of about 100 guests. The space made available to campers is mainly within family estates and courtyards. You will find such camps down the whole Adriatic coast, from Istria to Dubrovnik, and together with a few other campers you can enjoy your holiday in the shade of olive trees, pine and palm branches, close to vineyards, beaches, the sea, or other beautiful natural attractions. Indeed it might also happen that you find yourself having all this to just yourself, with no other guests around at all. In the mini-campsites, which are mostly located in beautiful locations, you will also enjoy the delicacies prepared for you by your hosts with any new-found friends. Perhaps this might be the fish that you caught yourself, at that special spot shown to you by your host. Your host will also ensure that, in addition to local cuisine, you also get familiar with the natural beauty that surrounds his campsite. They may organise sightseeing or help you with reaching a nearby National Park, small medieval town or a larger tourist destination or island. And they will also ensure entertaining evenings for you and the other campers. All this is more than enough to complement the cultural, sporting and recreational opportunities offered by the campsite and its immediate surroundings. However, the small size of some Croatian campsites does not necessarily mean a lack of equipment: in addition to a tent or camper, you can also stay in rented camper-vans or mobile-homes. The smallest campsites have only about a dozen accommodation facilities, but each one is a unique place. As far as availability goes in Croatia, the largest number of 'mini campsites' are in Dalmatia, in the Zadar and Dubrovnik regions, and on some islands. Some are also found in inland Croatia, along rivers or beside lakes and not far from the major Croatian tourist destinations. In continental Croatia, such campsites are becoming more numerous each year. They are an ideal holiday base for sightseeing tours around the inland regions and discovering the charms of the Croatian interior. Some of these campsites are located in some of the most attractive parts of the Croatian interior and, gathering around a pleasant fire with the other campers, you may well stay there for longer than you originally planned. For those travelling in camper-vans, 'mini campsites' are an ideal choice for accommodation. All in all, their biggest draw is having everything needed for a relaxing holiday in contact with nature and amongst natural sights, with a personal touch from their hosts. And this is what camping is all about.
